BRITISH APPROACH GATES OF CATANIA

REDS PUSH ON AGAINST 2 NEW NAZI DIVISIONS

Germans Throw Armored and Infantry Units Into Battle in Orel Sector.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 17—The German command has thrown two new divisions, one armored and one infantry, against the Russian spearhead now threatening Orel, front dispatches said today as the Red Army was reported to have rolled to within artillery range to advance.

One wing of the Red army's smashing counter attack was reported to have rolled to within 25 miles of the heavily fortified Nazi base as the Germans frantically rallied all available manpower and equipment in a desperate effort to stave off a major break-through.

Dispatches reported that the northern column of the Russian counter-offensive against Orel was advancing southward and had progressed another six to ten miles after overcoming 11 heavy German counter-attacks.

Distance from Orel

This would put the Russians anywhere from about 27 to 31 miles north of Orel since originally this column reached to a point about 37 miles north of Orel, dispatches indicated.

There is no indication of the present location of the other Russian column advancing on Orel from the east. Its original advance put it to within about 25 miles of Orel, dispatches indicated.

Southward along the Orel-Kursk-Belgorod bulge, against which the Nazis hurled a heavy offensive 12 days ago, fighting now has died down to scouting operations.

The war bulletin gave the day's bag as 129 German tanks and 76 planes, raising the 12-day total to 3,181 tanks and 1,762 planes. German losses in personnel also continued to mount, the communique said, listing the total at 82,000.

Rush Up Reserves

The Nazi high command was reported using all its available motor transport to rush reserves to the threatened front.

There was every indication from the Russian communique that the Red army had bitten deeply into German defenses. Orel is an important rail center and the Nazi high command has spent 18 months on its fortifications, making it one of the key bases on the central front.

Russian reports said that in some sectors the Germans were in somewhat "disorderly" retreat. Of ten divisions facing the Red army, five were reported routed while the remainder "suffered a heavy defeat." Four of the ten divisions were armored, the communique said.

At the southern end of the Kursk salient, where the Germans in the first few days of the battle made their only gains, the Russians said they still were whittling the wedge which the Nazi have held for the last ten days.

Sicily Provides Pattern for Invasion of Europe

London Observers Believe Same Methods Will Work Against Hitler's Western Defenses.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 17—The imminent prospect of a clean-cut victory in Sicily has confirmed the Allied formula for an amphibious assault on western Europe and suggests strongly in the view of some observers that the same pattern will work against Adolf Hitler's Atlantic wall of Western France.

There is no intention to imply, these sources pointed out, that the Germans are relying on mere scarecrow defenses. However, reports from the Mediterranean front of surprisingly low Allied casualties and rapid progress throw a clearer light on the Nazi theme of impregnability.

The ascendancy of allied air power leaves little doubt, it was said, that the RAF and the Eighth U. S. air force will be able to lay down the same ruinous preliminary bombshower and maintain the same efficient umbrella over an allied landing on the French coast as over Italy's sorely-stubbed Sicilian toe.

To Major General Leonard Townsend Gerow, former chief of the United States army's staff war plans division and newly appointed commander of American forces in Britain, goes part of the task of preparing and executing any invasion move in this theater.

General Gerow, it was announced yesterday, replaces Major General Russell P. Hartle who brought the first American troops to Europe at the start of the present war. Hartle's new assignment was not disclosed.

British bases are closer to the West Wall than the allied Mediterranean bases are to Sicily. Although the German air force in the west undoubtedly is superior to that in Sicily the allies have proved repeatedly that they can control the skies over France.

A simple fact illustrated by Sicily seems to be that the axis, for all its reserves, can not maintain an adequate front against the Russian army and still man the 8,000-mile coastal front of western Europe to meet a concentrated attack at beachheads of allied choosing, the observers here said.

War Summary

SICILY — British reported approaching gates of Catania after repulsing elements of two Nazi divisions.

AIR ATTACK — Allied planes keep up devastating attack in Sicily sector, blasting ferry supply artery to island.

RUSSIA—Two new Nazi divisions fail to stop Russians in Orel sector.

INVASION — London observers believe Allied attack on western Europe will follow same pattern used in Sicily, when clear-cut victory now is in prospect.

NEW COMMANDER. Maj. Gen. Leonard Townsend Gerow (above), 54-year-old native of Petersburg, Va., has succeeded Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, as commanding officer of U. S. field forces in the European theater, according to an army announcement from London.

DROWNS IN BUCKEYE LAKE

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, O., July 17—Three-year-old Trenton Enyart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Enyart of Columbus, fell off a dock at nearby Buckeye lake and drowned.

2 MORE TOWNS TAKEN ON WAY TO SEA PORT

Elements of Two German Divisions Repulsed in Capture of Cities.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's great desert army was believed to be approaching the outskirts of Catania today, after smashing back the Hermann Goering and elements of the 15th German armored divisions in the biggest battle yet fought for Sicily.

Going forward with a powerful Allied war fleet on his seaward flank gunning the enemy's positions, Montgomery has captured both Lentini and Scordia, at the entrance to the Catania plain, Allied headquarters announced, while on other parts of the allied front the advance continued.

Lentini is about 15 miles below Catania, the prize seaport and air base half way up the east Sicilian coast, and Scordia is nine miles inland from Lentini.

Rounding out the capture of four more towns by the Allies, the Canadians took Caltagirone, 20 miles inland from the American bridgehead at Gela, and Grammichele, six miles to the east.

French Goumiers In Action

With French Goumiers, fierce knife and tommy gun wielding warriors from the Moroccan hills on their left flank, the Americans of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., were believed to have emerged from the hilly ground that ringed their beachheads and to have penetrated inland for perhaps 30 miles.

The new surge gave the Allies possession of a lateral east-west highway and a valley running east-west which will greatly facilitate the task of maintaining unbroken communications with the British Eighth Army.

The axis now would be forced back approximately 30 miles, it seemed, before reaching the next major east-west road running through Caltanissetta, Enna and Gerbini to Catania.

Fighting still was going on between Lentini and Catania, but Montgomery was believed to be very close to Catania harbor after engaging the Hermann Goering division since Wednesday morning. (A BBC broadcast from Algiers, recorded by CBS, said the Eighth army "is less than six miles from Catania.")

It was assumed also that capture of the nest of airfields in and around Gerbini, 12 miles southwest of Catania and at the edge of the Catania plain, was threatened by British forward elements.

Terrain Favors Enemy

The British, however, were fighting their way across terrain which greatly favored the defending forces. It is criss-crossed with waterways large and small and contains three large rivers which run at right angles to Montgomery's advance.

More than 20,000 axis troops had been captured, some 10,000 of them by the Americans in spreading far to the west and north of Caltagirone.

It was believed here that Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni, axis commander in Sicily, had no more than 250,000 and 60,000 Germans at his disposal when the invasion began.

Allied military observers said that the 60,000 Germans were too few to defend the island and were being used mainly to brace the Italians except at Catania where

SHARE-RIDE AID TO AKRON

Plant Forces Reported Near Normal Despite Strike of Car, Bus Workers.

AKRON, O., July 17—War workers in the rubber capital proved the worth of share-the-ride programs today and kept airplane and rubber production normal as a three-day strike of 400 CIO transport workers continued to tie up mass transportation.

Absenteeism showed only slight increases at war plants, where the year-old transportation arrangements among workers moved easily into fuller operation and substituted for the paralyzed public transportation facilities in Akron, Barberton and Cuyahoga Falls.

A Goodyear Aircraft Corp. spokesman said the share-the-ride program was so well organized at the plants that "we hardly realized there was a transportation strike."

Plant Forces Near Normal

Officials at Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and B. F. Goodrich Co. reported their plants were operating at near normal. The aircraft plants, located seven and a half miles from downtown akron, said absenteeism yesterday was only one and a half per cent above normal, and three per cent above normal on the first day of the unexpected walkout.

Sixty per cent of Summit county's 101,062 motorists possess B or C gasoline ration books. The office of price administration granted gasoline rations of two gallons daily to Summit county "A" book holders for the duration of the strike. Clinton M. Fiske, OPA district director at Cleveland, said B and C card holders, able to show need for more gasoline, could get additional rations.

A back-to-work move among bus and streetcar operators yesterday failed despite appeals from the union's International President Michael J. Quill of New York. Fewer than half the operators attended and a vote could not be taken, local President William H. Wright said.

"You're not going to get any place by striking," Quill declared. "Under no consideration can we in the CIO tolerate a strike in war time."

WLB Recommends Relief

A WLB panel had recommended increased overtime pay by establishing a basic work week of 42½ hours with time and a half over that. The uion sought full pay for all hours over 40.

At Canton the number of CIO steelworkers involved in a stoppage in the Timken Roller Bearing Co.'s steel mill grew to 520 when about 100 workers in the piercing mill and machine shop joined a walkout which began Tuesday in the rolling mill department.

Col. J. H. Malone, labor chief of the army's Fifth service command, came to Canton yesterday at the request of Federal Conciliator A. T. Pinkney. He said he would remain until "the strike is settled."

Junior Fair Heads Elected

Gordon Eichorn of Pleasant Township Named President; Divisional Heads Also Chosen.

Gordon Eichorn of the Pleasant township vocational agricultural group was elected president of the 1943 Marion county junior fair board at an organization meeting of the board held at the county agricultural extension office last night. Over 50 representatives of county 4-H clubs, vocational agricultural groups and home economic organizations were present.

Robert Dodrill of Grand Prairie township was chosen vice president of the board and also vice president of the 4-H division of the board. Betty Denman of Waldo was elected secretary of the board.

In the home economics section of the board, Maxine Retterer of Claridon was elected president, Eula Hawk of Pleasant township, vice president, Juanita Retterer of Waldo, secretary, and Helen Rorich of Martel, corresponding secretary.

Mary Lyon of Grand Prairie was chosen president of the 4-H division of the board. Doddril was chosen vice president, and Charlotte Davids, secretary.

A constitution committee composed of representatives of all three divisions was appointed to draw up by-laws for the junior fair this year. The first meeting of this committee will be held in about three weeks to make any necessary amendments.

Members decided to operate the junior division of the fair this year on about the same basis as in previous years. There will be livestock exhibits under the management of both 4-H clubs and vocational agricultural organizations. Members also voted to place most of the displays of all three groups in the regular junior division building at the county fairgrounds.

Members of the senior fair board assisting with the junior this year are Fred Baldinger of Martel and John Deitsch of Richland township. Both were at the meeting last night.

Robert Jackson, vocational agriculture teacher in both the Claridon and Caledonia schools, was in charge of the vocational group. Miss Gladys Uncapher of the Waldo school headed the home economics department. Arthur Smith, county agricultural extention agent and Mrs. Christine Cook, county home council agent, had charge of the 4-H clubs.

F. T. HAYBECK DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Native of LaRue Passes Away at Home Near Marion.

Fred T. Haybeck, 70, died at 12:55 p. m. today at his home on Harding Highway West, following an illness of two years. A native of LaRue where he was born Feb. 5, 1873, he came to Marion 35 years ago.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Maude Haybeck and two daughters, Mrs. Nita White, wife of Robert E. White, president of the National City Bank of Marion, and Miss Dorothy Haybeck, both at home. A sister, Mrs. Emma Ferden, and a brother, William Haybeck, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., also survive.

Mr. Haybeck had conducted a barbershop in Marion for the last 35 years, and prior to that time was in business at LaRue. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church.

Noisy Burglar Does Damage, Gets Nothing

Mrs. George Davidson of 158 North Main street reported to city police this morning that her apartment had been broken into about midnight and several dollars damage caused when the intruder knocked over a kitchen cabinet in the dark.

Two patrolmen investigated and found entrance had been gained through the bathroom window. Nothing was taken from the apartment.

SWIMMING COURSE TO START MONDAY

Red Cross To Sponsor Classes at Crystal Lake.

A two weeks' course in swimming for children and adults will be sponsored by the Marion County Chapter of the American Red Cross beginning Monday, at Crystal Lake. Classes for beginners will be held each morning from 10 to 12 o'clock and adult swimming and life saving classes will be held each evening from 7 to 9 o'clock Monday through Friday.

John Sekinger will be the instructor, assisted by Ted Brownlee and the following junior swimmers and life savers who have taken a refresher course: Jay Timson of Caledonia, Jeannette Curl, Patty Wiant, Mary Baldauf, Josephine Judy and Jack Robbins. Any other senior or junior life savers having taken the refresher course are also eligible to assist.

7 FIRES BLAMED ON MARION BOY

$5,670 School Blaze Included in List Confessed by 17-Year-Old.

A 17-year-old Marion boy has admitted starting seven property fires in the last five years, including one at the North State street school building which resulted in damage estimated at $5,670, city police and Gayle Owens, deputy state fire marshal of the central Ohio district, reported today.

The North State street fire occurred five years ago. The other six have occurred since then, with comparatively small damage.

The boy was questioned by city police yesterday after his arrest on North Main street at 10:17 a. m. He was later turned over to Owens for further questioning and is now in the county detention home.

Fire Chief T. J. McFarland participated in both the questioning done by the police and by Owens.

Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast said today an affidavit had been filed to the effect that the boy was feeble-minded and efforts would be made to place him in the state institution for the feeble-minded.

Wanted to Hear Sirens

He told police he had set all the fires so "I could hear the sirens on the fire trucks." The most recent blaze which he admitted setting occurred Wednesday at the rear of a downtown business place. This was a trash blaze, and caused only negligible damage, but fire department officials said "it could have been serious."

Police said the boy had been employed at the business place for about three days up until the time of the fire. He was discharged by the owner of the business and the fire occurred the night of the same day. The boy told police he set the fire because he was angered over his dismissal.

Taken After Phone Call

His apprehension by the police yesterday morning was brought about by a phone call he made to the owner of the business. The owner said the boy asked him if there had been a fire recently at the store. He said he immediately recognized the boy's voice and shortly afterwards notified police of the call. Patrolmen then arrested the boy on North Main street near the downtown area.

Police said that after the questioning at the police station, the boy led them and Owens to the scenes of all the fires he had caused. The fire at the North State street building occurred on Aug. 20, 1938, according to fire department records. The boy told police that in setting fire to the building he first extended the fire escape and set the second floor ablaze. He then descended to the basement and ignited rubbish there.

The second fire the boy said he started was in a garage on Silver street on June 20, 1940. Damage was estimated at $100 by fire officials.

The next two recorded fires caused by the boy were both at the rear of a downtown grocery store. They were minor blazes, and no serious damage resulted. The first took place on

MARION COUNTIANS ASKED TO WATCH FOR WAR-DEAD

Honor Roll Committee Requests Aid In completing Casualty List.

Relatives and friends of men from Marion county who have given their lives for their country in the present war, and whose names are or should be listed on the Marion County Honor Roll are particularly asked to check the list appearing in the Federal Home Savings & Loan Co. advertisement in The Star today and on the following Saturdays, James R. Smith, chairman of the Honor Roll committee, announces. On the board these names are marked with a gold star, designating that the men have sacrificed their their lives in the cause of freedom. The committee hopes that these names, as well as the more than 3,000 others appearing on the honor roll will be checked for errors or omissions and that corrections will be made at the Victory House on the courthouse lawn.

British Seaman in Marion For "Exchange" Visit

Returns Call of Soldier He Met as Guest at Home in England.

Several months ago a Marion soldier, Pvt. Edwin Endicott, 24, visited the home of an RAF flying cadet in Chester-Le-Street, Durham, England, while on a short furlough from his British base. Yesterday that visit was returned when the RAF cadet's brother, a member of the British navy, arrived in Marion to spend a week-end leave with Pv. Endicott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Endicott of 458 Bellefontaine avenue.

The British seaman is Air Mechanic William Starkie of the ordnance department of the Royal Navy.

His brother, Eric Starkie, who is 21, has been in training for the last eight months as a flier in the Royal Air Force. "He may

WORKER SHORTAGE DELAYS RATION BOOKS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 17—A shortage of volunteer workers has made it impossible to complete mailing of war ration book No. Two to Ohioans by the July 21 deadline set by the office of price administration (OPA), D. P. Brannon, executive director of the Franklin county civilian defense council, asserted today.

At least 2,000,000 of the state's ration books still must be processed at state mailing headquarters here, making it doubtful whether some Ohioans will receive theirs before July 28, said Brannon, who is in charge of recruiting volunteers. He added that he did not know when the new coupons would become valid.

"Some days just don't know there's a war going on," he asserted in commenting on the lack of volunteers. "Every Ohioan should be concerned vitally about getting his book."

Brannon estimated between 500,000 and 700,000 man-hours would be spent in mailing books to everyone.

"If everyone had pitched in and helped a few hours as did our employees there would be no necessity for prolonging the job past the deadline," he declared. "We have more than 100 persons who have spent over 50 hours at the mailing center, some have worked a part of each day since June 7 when the mailing began."

ALLIED PLANES DROP LEAFLETS ON ROME

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 17 — Allied planes flew over Rome last night dropping leaflets, the Italian communique reported today.

Presumably the leaflets contained the Churchill-Roosevelt proclamation issued yesterday demanding that Italians capitulate or suffer the consequences.

Without mentioning the radio barrages which are spreading the Roosevelt - Churchill ultimatum all over Italy, Fascist propagandists hastily marshalled arguments today against an Italian capitulation.

Neither Italian radios nor newspapers picked up the allied appeal but the Italian newspaper Corriere Della Sera was quoted in a Berlin broadcast as saying that "capitulation would only bring us shameful peace and more fighting, destruction and suffering."

The official Italian news agency Stefani was quoted in the London Morning Press as saying that "If Britain and the United States want to defeat Italy they must defeat her with weapons in their hands and pay the price."

TO RESTORE SERVICE

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., July 17—Baltimore and Ohio railroad officials said passenger service between Wheeling and Akron, via Massillon, would be resumed if the office of defense transportation at Washington approved the plan. The proposal was made at a conference with Ohio public utility commissioners in Columbus as a substitute for requested Canton-Cleveland service, and the commission indicated its approval, B. and O. officials said.

FIVE U. S. DIVISIONS FIGHTING IN SICILY

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17 — The U. S. Seventh army fighting in Sicily includes the First infantry division under Maj. Gen. Terry Allen, the Third infantry division under Maj. Gen. Lucian Truscott, the 45th infantry division under Maj. Gen. Middleton, the Second armored division under Maj. Gen. Hugh Gaffey and the 82nd airborne division under Maj. Gen. Matthew Ridgway.

M'CORMICK ANSWERS WILLKIE CHALLENGE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 17 — Commenting on Wendell Willkie's challenge to oppose him in the Illinois presidential preference primary election, Col. Robert R. McCormick, Chicago Tribune publisher, said yesterday that at present he did not believe Willkie could "carry a single state west of New Jersey—either in the primaries or the general election."

"Anybody can beat Willkie in Illinois," said the publisher. "He's a joke out there."

Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential nominee, challenged Col. McCormick to run, after the publisher had been asked by resolution of the Republican nationalist revival committee to permit his name to be entered in the primary. The committee recently was organized with an announced aim to help maintain the Republican party as the "nationalist" party in United States politics.

Colonel McCormick has not indicated whether he would accept the offer of the committee, which also stated its opposition to Willkie.

LIMA RAISES WAGES

LIMA, O., July 17—Some 300 municipal employes will receive $10-a-month raises, and waterworks and sewage plant workers $8 monthly increases, starting Aug. 1. City council voted the pay hikes at a special session.

Allied Air Attack Blasts Ferry Supply Line to Sicily

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 17 — The main axis supply artery into Sicily by way of the Messina-San Giovanni ferry again was hit by crushing round-the-clock attacks from powerful formations of allied bombers yesterday, allied air headquarters announced today.

Flying Fortresses and Wellingtons planted devastating loads of explosives on the docks and sidings of the ferry line itself and photographs showed that 50 direct hits were scored.

American Liberators from Middle East bases again joined in the daylight offensive, striking this time at Bari airdrome, axis fighter and fighter-bomber base on the Adriatic coast of southern Italy.

The Americans bumped into heavy fighter opposition, destroying 11 enemy planes, probably destroying seven others and damaging two more. Three Liberators were lost.

Allied air units operating from North African and the island bases meanwhile accounted for 13 enemy planes, four of them downed by night fighters, while losing four aircraft of their own.

Mitchells, Marauders and Wellingtons also crossed the Messina strait to strike at Reggio Calabria and Vibo Valentia on the toe of the Italian boot.

It was disclosed officially that Field Marshal Baron Von Richthofen, cousin of the German world war ace, now is directing the air defenses of the axis in Sicily.

The score against him during the first week of the allied invasion was 163 axis planes destroyed against the loss of 69 by the allies. In addition, a total of five merchant ships have been sunk and one tanker and four destroyers damaged.

Widespread attacks on enemy rail and highway communications throughout Sicily continued with "large numbers" of transports destroyed or damaged.

God Is

A Sermonette

By REV. H. C. AHRENS

Pastor of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church.

THESE words state an established, positive fact. A fact that still stands in spite of dungeon, fire and sword, in spite of all infidels, unbelievers and arguments to the contrary. In times like the present it offers comfort, strength, hope and assurance to know that "God is."

These words tell us so much about God that it is impossible to exhaust the subject. The writer of Deuteronomy reminds us that God is one Lord. He may possess different personalities. He may be Father, Son and Spirit, but He is one God. Jesus accepted and taught this doctrine.

This leads us to a statement which Jesus made concerning this subject, namely "God is a Spirit." Knowing this St. Paul declared to the Athenians "He is not far from each one of us; for in Him we live and move and have our being." It reminds us that God is ever present. No matter where our loved ones may be we know that God also is near at hand.

"If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall Thy hand lead me and Thy right hand hold me. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me."

When you are concerned about yourself, or loved ones scattered to the four winds, remember this —God is, and therefore is near at hand. God being spirit, He can also be worshipped anywhere. He can only then be of help to the worshipper, however, if He is worshipped in spirit and truth, for Jesus not only states that God is Spirit, but that they that worship Him Must Worship Him In Spirit and in Truth.

The term "God is" [illegible] Light. St. John writes in [illegible] Epistle "God is Light. [illegible] Light. [illegible] no darkness [illegible] [illegible] and entire nations may [illegible] darkness, but you cannot [illegible] God. All around us [illegible] may be dark, but we can't [illegible] [illegible] into the light and [illegible] [illegible]. None can do that. Even though all about us were pitch dark, there still can be darkness spiritually as long as the Light is permitted to shine in the darkness, for God is Light.

THE subject "God is" reaches its highest peak in the statement "God is Love." Since God is love any philosophy, doctrine, or teaching based on hate cannot be of, nor associated with, God. It can only come from, or have its origin in Satan, the enemy of God. God's love reaches it's climax on the cross "for God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have eternal life."

Can you conceive of a father sending his son on the firing line to save a dying enemy soldier? If so then you can understand the love of God who sent His son to die on the cross to save us, His enemies, dying in sin.

No matter how dark and gloomy the outlook, God is. He is Spirit. He is Light. He is Love. He who won on the cross when it was dark will be the victor in the present conflict.

Have you trials and temptations? Is there trouble anywhere? We should never be discouraged. Take it to the Lord in prayer. Amen.

Little Chats on Public Notices

By JAMES E. POLLARD

Ohio State University.

BETTER PUBLIC NOTICES

Despite their usefulness and importance, Public Notices have their imperfections. Attorneys, public officials and others who have frequent occasion to use them sometimes have difficulty with them. No wonder the layman is puzzled by them.

For one thing, they lack uniformity. A more common criticism is that they are unattractive in appearance. Very often the form in which they appear is prescribed by law and the user has no choice. Until the lawmakers can be persuaded to change the form or permit some option in publishing the notice, not much can be done.

But even such drawbacks do not lessen the importance of or necessity for the Public Notice. Nor are they any excuse for failure to comply fully with the law on notice. Until improvement can be made, the best possible use should be made of existing facilities to give notice. This is for the protection of the rights of the individual and those of the public.

Opinion Divided on Open Comment on Sex Matters

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 17—Because of the rise of juvenile sex delinquency in wartime, some [illegible] have been attempts [illegible] be made through the [illegible] and through the newspapers to provide a sounder and more effective education of the public in [illegible] matters.

They argue that a frank and open approach to such problems would give young people intelligent guidance which parents often fail to provide. Opponents of this point of view argue, on the other hand, that public discussion of such subjects may bring more harm than good to the younger generation.

The idea of instituting courses in sex education in American high schools meets with considerable public favor, as reported by the Institute last month. There is less support, however, for the proposal that daily newspapers should carry columns by medical authorities frankly and scientifically discussing sex matters.

A survey was conducted throughout the 48 states by the Institute on the following issue:

"Some people say that sex problems should be scientifically and frankly discussed by medical authorities in the newspapers. Do you approve or disapprove of this?"

The vote is:

Approve	4?%
Disapprove	4?
Undecided	1?

The chief reason given by those who disapprove of the idea is that there would be no way to prevent very young children from reading such articles if they appeared in the newspapers.

Notable differences in attitude were found by age groups and between men and women. Women in general disapprove of the idea of newspaper columns discussing sex problems, while men approve.

The young age groups—those between 21 and 29—favor the idea, while the older groups oppose it.

SALES TAX FOR 6 MONTHS HIGHER IN MARION COUNTY

Collections to June 30 Amount to $186,214.

Sales tax collections in Marion county for the first six months of this year gained 3.2 per cent over last year's for the half year. Collections to June 30 stood at $186,214.60 while last year's figure to the same date was $180,439.07. Amount for the four-day period from the close of the week ended June 26 to the end of the month was $5,770.70.

Collections during the first six months of the year throughout the state marked a gain of $415,717.03 over last year's collections for the similar period, the office of Treasurer of State Don H. Ebright reported. Net receipts from the source during the period amounted to $27,164,808.55 this year as against $26,749,091.52 last year.

A pertinent feature of the semi-annual report is that of the seven counties with largest population, all engaged in war production, two tended downward, Hamilton, with a loss of 3.7 per cent and Cuyahoga with 1.4, the office pointed out.

For counties around Marion the following figures were given for the four-day period ended June 30 and for collections during the half-year with those for last year in parentheses followed by percentages of loss or gain.

Crawford, four-day period, $4,828.18; collections to date, $104,074.42 ($107,251.88), 3 per cent loss.

Delaware, four-day period, $3,329.23; collections to date, $52,872.98 ($51,424.21), 1.3 per cent gain.

Hardin, four-day period, $1,958.89; collections to date, $62,337.88 ($59,517.75), 4.7 gain.

Morrow, four-day period, $636.28; collections to date, $13,346.88 ($15,587.99), 14.4 per cent loss.

Union, four-day period, $891.65; collections to date, $33,767.24 ($35,804.16), 5.7 per cent loss.

Wyandot, four-day period, $2,039.88; collections to date, $42,255.46 ($42,336.87), 0.2 per cent loss.

Many Interesting Activities Feature Sessions of Girl Scouts' Day Camp

Week at Farm South of Marion.

...l Scouts have had to ... great deal of ingenuity ... their camp program ... that with food ration... ...mal shortages and ... problems; never... ...n girls have taken ... section of Marion ... and converted ...mp site where they ... days a week in a ... peaceful atmos... ...ing nature lore and ... self-reliant.

...ocated on property ... Della Barks on the ...road, has been the scene for many interesting activities since its opening July 6, in spite of the fact that it has rained every day but two. Tuesday's camp session was held in the American Legion dugout because of rain. Camp is conducted every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 9:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. through July.

Good attendance has been reported by Camp Director Miss Edith T. Treat for the five camp sessions held to date. Thursday, being Brownie day, the attendance soared to 102. The highest previous attendance this year being 97.

In spite of gas rationing and limited transportation facilities, the youths get to Day Camp by bicycles or by riding the city buses to the end of the line and walking the remaining mile and a half. Transportation is furnished to Brownie girls by members of the various troop committees. They bring their own lunches and milk is furnished.

Five Units in Camp

Each group plans its own program with the unit staff leaders. All the leaders report that there are no discipline problems and tasks do not have to be assigned. The girls all volunteer, the leaders said, and none of them are shirkers.

Five units are in progress, including two Brownie units which are conducted only on Thursdays. Each unit has its headquarters on its own private clearing, and the girls in the units have made their meeting places comfortable and attractive encampments on which to enjoy themselves.

On each clearing, the girls have made stone fireplaces, shelves by lashing small logs between trees, and wash stands. They have dragged logs in for seats and have lashed poles between trees to be used as clothes racks. The young Marionites have even fashioned waste paper containers from tree trunks decayed in the middle or small logs constructed in log cabin style. Each unit has near its clearing a homemade outdoor latrine, which meets with state health qualifications. Two units have fashioned rustic archways on their portion of the grounds with the name of the unit hanging over the entrance. One group of girls, craving privacy, have built a "camouflage" by lashing leafy tree branches between trees. This way the girls in the neighboring unit cannot see what they are doing. Another group, finding that too many bicycles were lying around, decided yesterday to build a bicycle rack. The same group have also constructed a table of boards fastened to a tree, and near the fireplace they have a large woodpile, divided into three sizes of wood.

List of Activities

Miss Treat says that one way of introducing nature lore is by encouraging the use of the material found on the camp site for craft work. Bracelets and necklaces have been fashioned from small pieces of wood found on the site, shellacked and attached to braided cord. Letter openers, belt buckles (for braided cord belts) and bookmarks are also objects made from wood.

Other activities include bicycling, scavenger hunts, outdoor cooking, hiking and group singing. A bicycle unit, comprised of senior scouts, are planning a three day bicycle jaunt to Marysville during the last week of July. They intend to carry all their equipment for camp purposes on the bicycles, and after reaching their destination, will spend two nights and a day before starting homeward again.

Miss Ruth Little is camp business manager. In charge of "Terrorium," (10-11 year olds) is Miss Mary Kathryn Stone and her assistants, Winifred Reed and Mrs. D. L. Stribley. Directing the activities at "Flicka Grove," (11-13 year olds) is Mrs. C. J. Zimmerman and assisting her are Mrs. Roy Everly and Mrs. J. M. Parker, who is also in charge of crafts. Miss Barbara Fralich conducts the bicycling unit composed of senior scouts. Brownie action is in charge of the following: Mrs. A. W. Kette, Mrs. Robert Mason, Mrs. R. K. Beall, Mrs. Gerald Amerman and Mrs. B. E. Carter.

FOOD ON PARADE

A gay touch of color and an ounce of imagination carefully combined in the arrangement of a Turoff's plate . . . are parents of the thought . . . "that sure looks good"!

Maybe it's only an orange garnish . . . iced carrot sticks . . . a crisp celery heart . . . watermelon preserve . . . or a dash of green . . . that adds relish and grace to your food, or perks up an indifferent appetite! An eye for color and an appreciation of the beauty of fresh food, attractively assembled, are qualities to look for at Turoff's!

BAPTIST WOMEN OF DISTRICT MEET

Missionary Group Gives Program at West Mansfield.

The Women's Missionary [illegible] of the Marion Baptist Association held an all-day meeting with the members of the West Mansfield church Thursday at West Mansfield. Mrs. Elmer [illegible] was in charge of the meeting which opened with the singing of the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers." Mrs. Frank McLane of Richwood led devotions [illegible] by reports of [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] of West Mansfield [illegible] reported [illegible] [illegible]

The afternoon program included a talk by Mrs. Martin Engwall, a former missionary in the Belgian Congo, reviewing her life in the [illegible]. Mrs. Ruth Bosley of [illegible] and two plays, "[illegible] of the Jews to [illegible] Life" and "Mrs. Con[illegible] Learns About the Missionary Meeting" were presented by women of the West Mansfield church. Rev. Harmon of Green Camp sang the "Ninety and Nine" and later introduced the new ministers, Rev. and Mrs. Daubert of Prospect and Rev. Albert Hill of Radnor.

A report of the Banner committee showed that Trinity had the largest attendance at the meeting with Grand Prairie rating second and Radnor third. Rev. Hubert Goewey of Richwood, Rev. George Reed of Springdale and Rev. Hart of West Mansfield each gave a short talk. The meeting closed with benediction by Rev. Goewey.

JOHN WEINANDY RITES

2 SENATORS DOUBT 4TH TERM POSSIBLE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17—Two outspoken U. S. senators—A Republican and a Democrat—voiced belief today President Roosevelt might not seek or accept nomination for a fourth term.

Senator Nye (R-ND) asserted that if the President "finds there's a large chance of his being whipped," he will step aside.

"And," Nye told a reporter, "if he looks around enough, he'll find just that."

Senator Smith (D-SC) declared in another interview that Roosevelt won't win the nomination even if he should seek it, and by convention time, I think he'll be convinced of that."

"If he should be able to swing the nomination," Smith declared, "he'd be beaten for reelection, regardless of whether the war is in progress."

Nye said the principal job of his own party was to find a man behind whom "the party and the American people can unite."

Nye asserted that congressmen returning in September after their summer recess and conversations with their constituents, "will have more definite ideas than now as to the type of candidate the people will follow."

Meanwhile it developed that the Republican party's postwar advisory council has fixed on Sept. 6 and 7, or thereabouts, for its first full meeting to consider suggestions for a peace preservation plank in the 1944 platform.

Pony Killed by Taxi in Mishap Near Bucyrus

BUCYRUS, July 17—Struck by a cab belonging to the Service Taxi Co. of Galion, a Shetland pony belonging to Harold Etsinger, two miles of east of Bucyrus, was instantly killed near the Etsinger home on route 19, Thursday night. The animal was dragged beneath the wheels of the taxi which crashed into a ditch following the accident. The driver of the cab, C. F. McKinney, was uninjured. The cab was badly damaged.

Fire Hose Purchase Is Denied to Galion

Special to The Star

GALION, July 17—Service Director Charles Geiger received a communication Friday from the Cleveland office of the war production board, denying the city's request to purchase high grade fire hose. The city had attempted to buy 400 feet of two-and half inch double jacketed fire hose. Reason for the denial was given in limitation order L-39 which restricts double jacketed fire hose to plants making explosives for the government. The service director said it may be necessary to buy a lower quality fire hose, because of this restriction.

BANK SERVICES
for the entire
FARM FAMILY

THE children will find that they can cultivate the habit of thrift by making small deposits regularly in their bank accounts here. Mother can use a checking account to good advantage to make payments (father can too), thus saving time and effort and keeping all accounts in good order. Father will reap many benefits from our credit services. He knows that credit is a modern farm "tool" which, wisely used, will increase farm productivity and profits.

What would we give to clasp your hand,
Your happy face to see,
To hear your voice and see your smile
Would mean the world to us.
Friends may think we have forgotten
And our wounded hearts have healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That within our hearts concealed.
A truer husband and son no one could find,
Why you were taken from us
Is more than we can understand,
For God needed another angel
to complete His holy land.
We cannot forget you
While in this land we stay;
God only knows our heart-broken feeling
Since you have passed away.

BUSINESS PLACE SCENE OF 2 THEFTS IN 2 WEEKS

Diamond Ring Among Articles Stolen.

A diamond with an estimated value of $175 and a rare $10 gold piece of 1894 vintage figured in two thefts at the Valeria Fahey Beauty Shop on West Center street within the last two weeks. Both of the thefts were reported to police by Mrs. Valeria Fahey of 223 Olney avenue, who owned both of the stolen items.

She told police the first theft took place sometime between June 25 and July 6. A 1¼ karat diamond in a yellow gold ring was taken from the beauty shop in the theater building, she reported. She described the ring as having small diamonds on each side.

The second theft, which proved not as costly as the first, took place at the beauty shop between 5 and 10 p. m. yesterday. Mrs. Fahey reported the shop was looted of an 1894 $10 gold piece, a small amount of cash, keys to her home and to her car, and her driver's license.

Sheriff Makes Air Raid Test Work in Union Co.

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, July 17—Union county had its daylight air raid test Thursday night and it was highly successful despite the fact that only the alert signal was received here. To sheriff Homer S. Roosa goes the thanks for having the raid test proceed as he instituted his own set of signals for the remaining calls.

The alert was received at 6:55 p. m. Sheriff Roosa sat in his office listening to the State Highway Patrol broadcast the procedure of the blackout. When no further call had been received at 7:47, the sheriff sent his own alarm to the control center. He sent out the third call at 7:54, the fourth at 8:05 and the all-clear at 8:12.

"The calls came rather fast after I got started but we had our daylight air raid test," the sheriff stated.

As a result of the sheriff's action, Union was the only one of nine counties in the district to proceed with the test. In others where the calls did not come through, the wardens got tired and went home after about a two-hour wait.

ALLIES SET UP GROUP TO GOVERN SICILY

By The Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, July 17—[illegible] first combined American-[illegible] military government [illegible] accompanied the allied [illegible] army to govern Sicily, it [illegible] nounced.

Hundreds of American and [illegible] officers and men [illegible] trained secretly for months [illegible] enemy territory [illegible] quickly established headquarters.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower designated Gen. Sir Harold Alexander as military governor [illegible] supreme authority in Sicily.

The allied military government organization itself is headed by Maj. Gen. Lord Rennell of Rodd as chief civil affairs officer and Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry of the United States is deputy chief.

It was officially declared that establishment of the allied military government has "no political implications of any kind."

"AMGOT" — Allied military government organization—[illegible] are responsible for the obedience of Sicilian civilians to provisions of the military government.

Although the administration of Sicily is to "be benevolent [illegible] as the civilian population is concerned, the influence of Fascism will be destroyed," it was officially stated.

New Ohio Small Loans Act Becomes Effective

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 17—A New Ohio small loans act enacted by the legislature [illegible] ter to impose broad restrictions on lending companies, became effective yesterday.

"This law really has teeth," said Paul Selby, chief of the state securities division.

Under the act licensees may not make any loans in excess of $1,000. They may not charge interest rates exceeding 3 per cent a month on loans up to $150, 2 per cent a month between $150 and $300, and two-thirds of one per cent a month (or eight per cent a year) on more than $300.

The previous legal maximum interest rate was three per cent a month on amounts up to $300 and eight per cent in excess of $300.

Road Work Progresses in Hardin County

KENTON, July 17—Fifteen men—just one-half of the regular strength — are busy completing Hardin county's road program, County Engineer Paul K. Strong said today as he laid plans for reconstruction of the three bridges next week.

The Dusang road near Mt. Victory was regarded and treated with a calcium chloride stabilized surface; other stone roads in the county have been spotted in front of homes with calcium chloride to allay dust; and a contractor is about ready to start the surface treating of 60 miles of roadway with a bituminous asphalt.

Housing Construction On Aronhalt Lot Progresses

[illegible] Work Completed on Part of 23 Duplex Type Dwell- [illegible]ngs; Project Cost Estimated at $190,000.

[illegible] latest permanent war-housing project—the Rosemary [illegible] the old Aronhalt circus lot between North Prospect and [illegible] rapidly taking shape and the first of the 23 duplex- [illegible] is expected to be [illegible] occupancy around the [illegible] September.

[illegible] actual work on the [illegible] project started [illegible] over two months ago, [illegible] work has been [illegible] the nine two-fam- [illegible] facing Prospect street [illegible] of the 14 facing [illegible] being pushed by a [illegible] craftsmen.

[illegible] despite the apparent [illegible] strides made so [illegible] Trautman of Columbus, [illegible] builder and archi- [illegible] estimated the project is from [illegible] weeks behind sched- [illegible] said work was delayed [illegible] during the spring [illegible] the result of continued [illegible].

Financing Details

Part of the costs of the under- [illegible] is being financed through FHA insured loans arranged for by the Prospect Apartments, Inc., a firm headed by Mr. Trautman. When plans for the building pro- gram were announced here late in April, Mr. Trautman reported that the entire addition would cost approximately $190,000, or a little over $8,000 per residence.

Shortly before negotiations were completed for the purchase of the site from William W. Aron- halt for a reported $11,400, Mr. Trautman obtained priorities and FHA approvals for the entire project through the Columbus FHA office in charge of A. L. Guckert.

Within two weeks after plans for the $190,000 program were announced here, approval of the official plat was obtained from both the city planning commis- sion and city council and prelim- inary work on the first of the homes was started.

Since then a similar rapid clip has been maintained partly, Mr. Trautman said recently, as a re- sult of the fine cooperation of Marion building supply dealers, local skilled construction work- ers and laborers and city officials. Virtually the only setback delay- ing the project was inclement weather, he said. Because they were obtained before the project was launched, even priorities haven't been too great a stumb- ling block.

The Columbus contractor has speeded up construction of the houses considerably by locating a shop on the site of the project. The shop, situated at the north end of the circus ground, is fully equipped with various types of power equipment capable of pro- ducing almost everything in the way of building material.

Two men spend their entire work day in the shop turning out window screens, door and win- dow frames and a score of other lumber products used in the mak- ing of homes and normally sup- plied by lumber mills. Window sash and doors are the only items of this type purchased, Mr. Trautman explained.

Probable Schedule

Barring further extended pe- riods of unfavorable weather, out- side work on from two to three residences will be completed each week, John R. Schucker of Co- lumbus, assistant to Mr. Traut- man and superintendent of the local project, estimated. If the project progresses on schedule, outside work on all of the 23 houses will be completed by around the middle of September.

But the nine homes facing North Prospect street will be completed in every way before those on Oak street are ready for interior work, Mr. Trautman said. "We expect to get the Prospect street houses ready for occupan- cy first and then complete the Oak street homes," he said.

Of Brick and Concrete

All the 23 houses are of brick and concrete construction insulat- ed with cinder block, a product described by Mr. Trautman as one of the best insulating products obtainable today. The houses, which measure about 24 by 32 feet, are located on lots measur- ing an average of 50 by 168 feet. If priorities can be obtained double garages will be built on each lot. About 210 feet of open space will be between the house and the garages as presently planned.

Separating the lots on each street will be a 16-foot alley which will connect with existing alleys at the north and south ends of the old show ground.

The apartments are classed as four and one-half room units be- cause they have a dinette rather than a large dining room.

Basements are separated into two distinct sections and each will have its own coal furnace, automatic hot water heater and basement utilities.

General Design

With the exception of a dif- ferent arrangement of closets, floor plans for both the first and second floor apartments are alike. Upstairs apartments have a small closet leading off of the living room while the downstairs units do not have this closet but have a slightly smaller corresponding closet located at the end of the hallway connecting the bedrooms and bath with the living room.

No Overhead Lights

In line with a current construc- tion theory overhead lights have been eliminated but there are a sufficient number of electrical outlets for table and floor lamps.

Bathtubs are made of large herculited glass plates seated in rubber. The glass, a product through which light easily passes, is manufactured by the Pitts- burgh Plate Glass Co.

When completed the project will represent the biggest single housing program in Marion in re- cent years.

Designed by Builder

Mr. Trautman, an architect by trade but a builder by choice, designed the type of residence being built here. Since construc- tion started he has been at the site a big share of the time. He is a native of Columbus and was affiliated with the L. L. LeVeque Co. of Columbus, builders of Olentangy Village, for 10 years before entering the housing con- struction field on his own.

Only shortly before beginning the Aronhalt lot project associates of Mr. Trautman completed work on a series of one and two family residences in Bexley.

Building Permits for Work To Cost $1,505 Approved

Sixteen building permits for construction estimated to cost $1,505 were issued between June 30 and July 16, records of Mrs. Mayme Gorton, city clerk, show. The following permits were is- sued: L. Your Electric Ironer

Associated Press Features

You are a lucky woman if you were one of the 2,000,000 who owned an electric ironer when production was stopped in 1942.

You are a smart woman if you use and care for it wisely. An electric ironer isn't just a little household gadget you might run out and buy any old time, even during peace. It always has been a luxury appli- ance and should be treated as such.

Because of its high wattage, an ironer should be used on a spe- cial appliance circuit for best results. If you must use an or- dinary house cir- cuit, never do so when that cir- cuit is being used for another appliance. You might blow a fuse.

If you store your ironer in a cold place, always let it stand in a warm room for an hour before starting the motor, to soft- en the grease and oil that make it operate easily. (Follow the manufacturer's instructions for oiling.)

When ironing, use the entire ironing surface to keep the pad from packing unevenly and the ironing shoe from geting too hot in unused spots. Otherwise you'll scorch the cover and pad. To avoid damage to the ironing sur- face, turn but- tons, snaps, zip- pers and any hard bumpy things toward the padding.

To freshen the padding when it packs with use, remove the mus- lin cover, then the padding, and fluff it up, reverse it, air it and replace it. You an make an ex- tra pad cover to use when one is being washed.

When you finish ironing, make sure the padded roll or board is perfectly dry by running the hot shoe or ironing surface over it a few times. A damp roll or pad may mildew. Then separate the shoe and pad, and cover the ma- chine to keep out the dust.

ACID STAIN ON RUG

Q.: I have some soiled spots on my Wilton maroon-colored rug, which were caused by spilled acid. The stains are lighter than the rest of the carpet. Can some- thing be done? I don't like to buy new carpeting.

Answer: The best thing to do in such a case is to have the work done by a rug repair establish- ment. But if you wish to take a chance yourself, begin by clean- ing the spots thoroughly, and then touch them up with a dye that you can get at your drug store. Make a rather light solution of the dye, and build up the color by several applications, allowing time for each one to dry before putting on the next. Follow print- ed directions carefully. But your results will not be so good as a professional job, for a perfect match will be hard to get. Scat- ter rugs will conceal the dam- aged places if your job is no good.

SANITATION HELPS BATTLE PARALYSIS

Vigilance in Guarding Water Supply Is Urged.

Two speakers at the recent sixty-first annual convention of the National Association of Master Plumbers pointed out that higher standards of sanitation will help in combating the spread of infantile paralysis.

Calling attention to the fact that the virus which causes infantile paralysis has been found in sewage, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, and John K. Dorsey of the American Society of Sanitary Engineering indicated that constant vigilance in the protection of water supplies against pollution by disease-laden sewage is necessary.

"It may well be," Dr. Bundesen said, "that our principal attack upon the spread of infantile paralysis will be centered upon sanitation, just as the prevention of typhoid fever and the various kinds of dysentery are today. If this should happen, the plumbing industry must inevitably be in the forefront of the attack against this great destroyer of lives and crippler of children."

Mr. Dorsey cited the prevalence of infantile paralysis in rural areas, where, he said, "badly designed sewage disposal facilities are the rule rather than the exception.

"Polio," said Mr. Dorsey, "has been considered more of a rural disease than an urban one, due, no doubt, to the fact that the principal differential factor that lies between life in the country and life in the city is that of sanitation."

Building Quiz

Q. Would you advise me how to recondition a maple table top? It is sorely in need of refinishing.

A. If the table has a light finish, but no stain, take off the old finish with a prepared liquid paint remover. Wipe the wood with benzine. Be careful of fire as both liquids are inflammable; have plenty of ventilation. Finish with two coats of a good brand of quick-drying varnish. After the first coat is hard and dry, dull the gloss by rubbing with very fine (000) sandpaper, wipe off the dust and apply a second coat.

To recondition a table top that has been stained as well as varnished, scrape off the old varnish with standpaper, being careful not to score the surface of the wood. This will not take the color stain out of the wood. Wipe off the dust and finish as above.

Q. I have an oil-skin shower curtain, two years old, which has begun to stick together. Is there any way in which I can prevent this?

A. The stickiness might be cured to some extent by sprinkling it with talcum powder, after the curtain has been washed with a mild soap and water, rinsed with clear water and allowed to dry. Wiping with lemon oil has been suggested by one of my readers, but I have not tried this method.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

Q. What are the white lillies in bloom now?

A. Some Regal lillies are still in bloom, although in the southern half of the state they are pretty well through blooming. Very similar to the Regal lily, with a strong odor, and with one or two flowers on the stem, is the Brown lily. They should be in bloom now.

There is also a hybrid of the Regal lily sold under the name of Princeps Hybrid, which usually blooms a week or ten days later than the Regal lily, often with a flower that is wider at the mouth than the Regal lily.

A few folks may have the smaller Madonna lily still in bloom although most of them have finished blooming.

Another lily that is occasionally seen is the common Easter lily. These are planted out of doors and are quite often hardy. One sold under the name of "White Queen" seems to be pretty hardy.

If you are interested in lillies, I believe you would enjoy reading the bulletin "Flowering Bulbs" published by Ohio State University and the agricultural extension service, which you can secure from your county agricultural agent.

Punch Line on an Ultimatum

THE ultimatum to the Italian people that has been delivered over the signatures of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt has an unusual punch line that carries a convincing wallop.

It is the presence in Sicily of a large and capable invasion army pushing back the Italian defenders and their German bosses; the presence in the air over Italy of a gigantic air armada that comes and goes almost as it pleases, dropping explosive death in its wake; the presence in the waters surrounding Italy of an Allied fleet so potent that the Italian fleet lay idle within easy cruising distance while American and British troops swarmed across the Mediterranean Narrows from Tunisia.

The ultimatum, itself, hardly can be expected to have decisive effect on Italian morale. But it has been given potent force by the deeds that have created the setting for a showdown in Italy. The Italian people have come to the parting of the ways; they can continue with Hitler and suffer more of the same, or they can start now to build the new Italy by throwing overboard the traitor, Mussolini, and the totalitarian gangsters who have maintained his regime for the last two decades.

The choice is no longer one of theory, but one that lies between alternatives in reality.

Wearing Apparel Suspense Broken

THE war production board announcement of a positive program for breaking suspense in the manufacture, distribution and purchase of wearing apparel, if backed up by positive action, can avert rationing of clothing.

Board Chairman Nelson says flatly that rationing is unnecessary. There is clothing enough to go around, if production in some lines is increased, if the public will use ordinary good judgment in its purchases, if the textile industry will cooperate with the war production board program. Mr. Nelson properly stresses the factor of consumer education; the programm can not succeed without a certain amount of self-denial and self-discipline. The aim is not to make conditions more difficult for anyone, but to make conditions easier.

It is an experiment—an experiment that failed when it was tried in other fields. Nevertheless, the omen for success in the handling of wearing apparel is good, due to the greater latitude that exists in the consumer field. The purchase of clothing is governed as often as not by the exercise of optional choice; the theory of the war production board program is that there will be plenty for all if purchases are made according to need, eliminating panic-buying as a major factor. The board's announcement is intended to do exactly that thing by eliminating the uncertainty which has stimulated panic-buying.

It Might Be OPA

WE do not know who is to blame for Lou R. Maxon's resignation from and parting blast at OPA. Perhaps it is the newspapers, again.

Or it might be congress, which is the alternative goat when the Roosevelt administration is laying the blame for things that go wrong.

It might be Republicans. As 1944 and the fourth term try come closer, a lot of things that go wrong in the New Deal are blamed on Republicans.

It might be Mr. Maxon's Sunday school and public school teachers when he was a little boy growing up. Perhaps they didn't prepare him properly for what he ran into as deputy administrator of OPA.

It might be the fact that Mr. Maxon is associated closely with the realities of things as they are and is, therefore, more concerned with making them work than with their destruction, which is what he thinks too many of the OPA colytes are thinking about.

Or it might be that OPA needs a thorough housecleaning to do the job it was set up to do, a possibility that has been mentioned a good many thousands of times recently, with no results.

Three Cheers for the Greek Navy

THE report that it was a Greek destroyer which steamed into the harbor of Augusta and captured that battered city after a furious bombardment from the Allied fleet is peculiarly satisfying, especially for the Greeks.

The Greek navy didn't cut much of a figure when Il Duce was playing a cut-rate Caesar on the expanse of the Ionian peninsula. In comparison with the Italian navy, it wasn't even worth considering—just a handful of over-age ships of questionable value. Yet, relative to its size and handicaps, the Greek navy did a lot of damage then and is still dishing it out to the Italian "Aryans" where they can't take it. The other Allies had better keep close watch, or some morning they may learn that the Greek navy has captured Naples.

Wallace-Jones Removal Necessary; War Cabinet Needed for Another Complex Situation.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

PAINFUL [illegible] to the [illegible] many friends, [illegible] tion in removing [illegible] and Mr. Jones from the [illegible] which they [illegible] absolutely relevant. [illegible] cannot be carried [illegible] sphere, and some [illegible] were disciplined, and to be inflicted upon the members of the [illegible] own offices [illegible].

The new arrangement is obviously better [illegible] the one it superseded. For [illegible] in one office, rather than in two rival offices, the operations under the general head of what the executive order calls, perhaps too broadly, "foreign economic affairs." In fact Mr. Crowley will, it appears, be the operating head for the control of imports and exports in war time.

The policy under which he will operate will be determined, it would seem, by the war production board, which will tell him what to import and what he may export, and by the department of state, which will tell him to whom to export and how he shall deal with the foreign countries with which we do war-time business.

This is correctly conceived in that the lines of authority run clearly to the right places. The war production board knows what we need to import and what we can spare for export. The department of state ought, as a matter of course, to regulate all contact with foreign countries and to have the final say in all foreign relations.

So far, then so good. But that is only a beginning, and by no means the end, of the indispensable reform can be seen quite clearly in the letter which the President has addressed to the heads of all departments and agencies. They may not quarrel in public on penalty of immediate dismissal from office. But what do they do with their disputes which are inevitable in the best regulated government, and with their conflicts of view which may at times be the only way of developing the whole truth of many half-truths?

Basic Error

They must submit their differences to the President, or to his deputy, Mr. Byrnes. There, sharply defined, is the crux of the trouble, the basic error in Mr. Roosevelt's philosophy of administration. He regards his chief lieutenants as separate little sovereigns responsible to him but not to one another. He will never conduct the government well until he makes his principal officers collectively responsible with himself in the determination of policy. This is what it means to have a cabinet. When there is a cabinet, the President does not sit as judge and arbitrator over rival chieftains. The chieftains themselves, with the President presiding and leading them, are compelled to settle their disputes in the presence of their colleagues and to abide by the decision of their colleagues. That is the only way to achieve full "co-ordination" — that is by having the decisions made by those who have to be coordinated.

That is the only way of putting [illegible] to the [illegible] private and separate [illegible] the appeals to a President who cannot possibly find the time or the knowledge to understand the whole issue. Then it would not be necessary for the President to confess, as he does in his letter to Messrs. Wallace and Jones, that he does not know the rights and wrongs of their 18-month-old dispute. In a cabinet their disputes would have been determined before they arose, or as they arose, and would have been settled by the judgment of their peers.

The alternatives, therefore, are clear. On the one hand, there is the President's practice of being the judge among rival chieftains. This puts a premium on rivalry for his favor, rivalry in stimulating public pressure, rivalry for personal and departmental prestige. On the other hand, there is cabinet government of the American type as carried on by the elder Roosevelt and by Wilson in their best days. Here the chieftains are a team, as a team they impose teamwork on one another, and they learn to realize that they stand or fall together.

Teamwork Needed

This makes not only for administrative efficiency but for political wisdom. Even worse than the public bickering, bad as it is, is the fact that to a very disturbing degree decisions of the highest consequence are made impromptu, without the benefit of thorough discussion, and on the basis of the personal feelings of the President and of some one, whoever it happens to be, that he listens to on that subject.

The alarming state into which our foreign relations have drifted is a spectacular example of what infinite damage can be done when great policies are conducted in anger and by individual impulse rather than by a council deliberating carefully. The difference between Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt is, in this respect, striking. For, while Mr. Churchill also has strong feelings and sharp impulses, as all big men have, the wise restraints of the British tradition of cabinet government are there to control and shape the policy of the government. But in Washington momentous policies are determined without such restraint, and not only the President's will but the President's whims are law.

Yet no man is wise enough to make great decisions which affect our relations with all the nations of the world alone and unchecked by the chief officials responsible for the war, alone and incited and excited by two or three men full of prejudice and phobia. In this way the President's French policy, which is implicating his whole foreign policy, has got to a pass where it defies all common sense.

All will not be well and we shall incur enormous and unwarranted risks until Mr. Roosevelt faces the truth, which is the beginning of political wisdom, that it is in the consultations of a cabinet, only in the practice of consultation and deliberation, that common sense is most likely to be brought to bear on great issues.

Unknown Food Boss

Jones Moving Out from Realm of Anonymity.

By JACK STINNETT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 17—The Washington wiseacres have just about quit predicting that anybody will amount to anything in this war effort.

Whenever someone starts shouting praises for a new figure on the home front, the boys singsong a little unrhymed couplet. "Knudsen, Kimmel, Henderson, Brown — Wickard, Davis, Odlum and Short."

Marvin Jones

That generally ends the conversation. There isn't one in the list that hasn't been touted as the modern Moses who would lead us into some kind of an economic or military Promised Land. And there isn't one who hasn't stubbed his toe on one or more rocky problems and had to limp off to a back seat or oblivion. The couplet could easily be expanded into a quatrain.

The Davis, of course, is Chester C. (not Elmer, who, however, has been having his own trouble with the critical hurdles lately). That's why Marvin Jones slipped into the post of War Food Administrator without any fanfare of trumpets or a single prediction.

Having had my own optimistic fingers burned, I'm not going to prognosticate anything at all about Marvin Jones, but it can be said here and now that no man has entered the wartime food picture with more unreserved uninterest from press, radio and politicians than he.

Backed Farm Bills

If there ever was a man in congress who accomplished more with such a genius for anonymity than Marvin Jones, I don't know who it could have been. From 1933 to 1940, there wasn't a piece of farm legislation passed by congress that didn't bear his stamp of approval, sponsorship or name. That portion of the Texas panhandle which he represented from 1916 on to his appointment on the court of claims here, had cotton, cattle and wheat galore and Jones knew the problems resulting from those troublesome products as intimately as his round head knows the inside of his hat.

As chairman of the house agriculture committee from the time that the Roosevelt administration took over in 1933, it was Jones' worry to lead the farmers out of the depression. Having worked his way to education and small fame from a tenant farm in north Texas, he was a champion of the underprivileged man with a hoe from the start.

His Formula

In those days, Jones had three favorite expressions: (1) "All legislation is a compromise." (2) "It's a step in the right direction." (3) "If it works, we'll come back and make it work better."

As the third war food administrator in less than four months, he could be just as near the edge of his chair as the two who preceded him, but if he falls off, it won't be because he's pushed by the same forces.

Jones will "compromise" by politely shoving the opposition a "few steps in the right direction" and if that works he'll be in there pitching to "make it work better" for the duration.

One question that already is being asked here is this: "Is Jones, now elevated to war food administrator and the war mobilization cabinet being groomed for something bigger?"

That something bigger could only be the post of running mate to the President should he make a bid for a fourth term, as political leaders of both parties now consider certain.

So far as I can determine, the first mention of Jones as a vice-presidential possibility came from that little circle who pass freely in and out of the doors of the President's study. That mention may have been no more than a trial balloon, but the probability that it was more than that makes it worth exploring.

The only three other men mentioned so far as possible harness mates for the President in the fourth term stakes are James F. Byrnes, now the "Second President" in handling the home front; Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn; and Vice President Henry Wallace.

Wallace Stock Down

Both press and political observers here now believe that Wallace is out of the running, because there is no indication that he has developed any greater magnetism for votes than he had in 1940, because he would be no help in healing the breach in the Democratic South and West and because he went against his Chief's explicit instructions and blew his feud with Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones into a page-one administration family scandal.

Speaker Rayburn has the qualifications of being geographically right and absolutely loyal. But he isn't one of the best known Democrats and his difficulties with a rebellious house this spring haven't added to his prestige. The fault wasn't his, but the fact remains.

Byrnes still is very much in the picture, but the feeling is growing both in and out of party circles that appeasement of the South which South Carolina's politically popular Mr. Byrnes certainly could effect, isn't going to be nearly as important as bringing the agriculturally-minded Middle West and West into the fold.

Thoroughly Western

There is where the quiet phlegmatic Judge Jones' potentiality mercury goes soaring. Politically, he's a cattleman, cotton-man, wheat-man and under-privileged farmer. As a west Texan, he belongs to the solid Democratic South. As a resident since youth of the vast Texas panhandle, he's as western as a rodeo. His record with the small farmers is unblemished. His former Texas colleague, Rep. Wright Patman says: "Under his leadership, more laws were enacted for the benefit of farmers than were enacted in all previous congresses."

Moreover, he has the reputation for never having seen a bill he sponsored voted down. That should make him a right handy man to have in the chair of the president of the senate.

"21 YEARS OF "MONKEY BUSINESS"

Spending Peak Passed

By Jack Stinnett for Associated Press.

WAR appropriations and contract authorizations give the government $228,000,000,000 to play with next year. But, the fact is the United States still hasn't been able to spend $100,000,000,000 a year for war purposes and has passed its spending peak.

It won't help with taxes, but this is the peak spending year. Starting with 1944, war appropriations probably will taper off even if the war still is raging. If victory is in sight, spending might even do a crash dive.

Members of congress, home for a recess, probably will make a point of this. It is their answer to charges such as that hurled at Vice President Wallace by Secretary of Commerce Jones — "Squandering the people's money, even in wartime, is no proof of patriotism."

Couple this with the declaration of Sen. Robert M. La Follette: "I do not hesitate to make the statement that if congress refuses to appropriate another dollar, this war could be carried on for two years without any (further) action by congress."

And that from Sen. Harry S. Truman: "The Army and Navy . . . know how to waste money better than any other organizations I ever have had anything to do with."

Wrap these statements up with that of Sen. Harry F. Byrd: "At the beginning of the 1943-44 fiscal year, there was more than $203,000,000,000 in the treasury, appropriated for war purposes, but unexpended, and the war agencies of the government have authority to make contract authorizations for nearly $25,000,000,000 more."

He pointed out that this staggering sum (only a book obligation, not cash on hand, understand) is exclusive of the vast amounts being expended by government corporations.

Emphasizing the fact that up to now congress has almost without a whimper appropriated everything that the Army, Navy and other war agencies have asked for, Sen. Byrd said: "It seems to me the time has come when closer scrutiny should be given the colossal appropriations now being made."

In the closing days of the congressional session, there was plenty of evidence of rebellion against blanket appropriations. Army and Navy requests for funds did go through unscratched — but with some reluctance. Some other war agencies didn't do so well.

Add all this up and you begin to get the picture of things to come.

Behind the Times

Announcement That Nationwide Liquor Rationing Is Imminent Shows Failure To Get Around.

By DAMON RUNYON

A SUBCOMMITTEE of the New York legislature reports that it has been informed that nationwide rationing of liquor, possibly by the industry rather than the government, is inevitable within a few [months].

The subcommittee must have dug up [one] of my columns of quite a spell back in [which] I gave my readers this same information. I wish the boys had communicated with me before reporting to the New York joint legislative committee on interstate cooperation. I could have given them some more up-to-date dope.

The rationing mentioned is not a matter of a few months. It is already here, and if any of the New York legislators do not think so let them try to buy liquor in any considerable quantity. The five big companies that control the bulk of the liquor in this country have been doling it out in limited lots to their jobbers for some time. The jobbers in turn [ration] [their] customers to make it go around.

By liquor, I mean specifically whisky. The companies figure that with a certain rationing they have enough to last four years unless the government permits them to make more in the meantime, which is quite possible. The only way a retailer can get more whisky than the wholesaler wants to give him is to "go on the makeup," as the lads say, meaning go into the black market.

THE extent of the operations of the black market in whisky is somewhat vague. It is supposed to be greater along the Atlantic seaboard and in the boarder states than anywhere else. One big operation is said to have its seat in Illinois, dealing mainly to the dry territory of the United States. On the Pacific coast, the "charcoal" operators are reported few in number and their enterprises small.

Very little of the old fashioned bootleg whisky is being manufactured for the simple reason that the 'leggers cannot get the ingredients or the materials necessary to set up stills. A small quantity of corn whisky and the various other kinds of "shine" that has been made in our backwoods regions for home consumption for generations is still being turned out, but there is not enough of this for the market.

Some of the black marketeers got their whisky in the first instance at the ceiling prices fixed by the government, a legitimate transaction up to the moment they started selling it at an increase. As the demand for liquor grew, I regret to report that some of the original holders of booze in bulk, though not any of the big companies, began requiring a profit beyond the ceiling of the black marketeers, the impulse of that unfortunate element in human nature known as larceny.

IT IS a hazardous proceeding, of course, as is black marketing in any form. One of these days the government will probably catch up with the boys. In the huffle-scuffle of war, little things of this kind may escape the scrutiny of the government for awhile, but in the end old Uncle Sam will be around asking embarrassing questions.

The big companies believe that after the war, whisky blends will be necessary until they get back on the pre-war production order and in the meantime they are trying to preserve their old brands long familiar to the public by conserving the supply. The whisky drinker of discernment and taste knows that it is very difficult right now to get more than a few drams of an ancient brand and the purchase of any large quantity is out of the question. So, as I say, the rationing is already on.

The average price of four-year-old whisky over a bar today is about 35 cents, and I note that the bartender no longer hands the customer the bottle, as was the custom in my whisky drinking days, and permits him to hide the glass behind his fingers up to the hilt. The bartender pours the slug himself, and it seems to me that many bartenders nowadays are curiously conservative in their pouring.

Another thing, I notice that the glasses are no longer the commodious vessels of yore, but undersized thimbles that contain what I would once have deemed a mere taste of the beverage. In fact, I would once consider a drink that size an insult to my appetite and intelligence.

So They Say—

No nation can ever become completely self-sufficient in industry. History shows that when the people of any country find profitable uses their increased consumption creates a demand for goods — foreign and domestic. — Frederick C. Crawford, president National Association of Manufacturers.

Gives Recipe for Happy Married Life

By International News Service

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., — The war has brought to light many unusual weddings via telephone, telegraph, and proxy, but while there are many ways of getting married, there's only one way to make it last, advises Dr. [illegible] E. John, sociology professor at Pennsylvania State College.

The best marriages are those in which the husband and wife do not have too many interests in common, he said. "When couples do [too] much together, they have too much on which to disagree," he explained. Dr. John also prescribed the following formula for a happy wedded life:

1. Get the blessings of the parents to avoid mother-in-law trouble.
2. Have a moderately long engagement [for] opportunity for social activity.
3. Love your mate more than your[self].
4. Marry someone about your own age [who] has a similar religion, about the same [degree] of education, and comes from the same [social] group.
5. Keep your mate your love object.
6. Make necessary sacrifices to bring about personal adjustment to the partnership [and] not let all the compromises be on your [side]. [The] more automatic family duties and activities become, the smoother the marriage.
7. Don't inhibit a conflict. Get it into the open and straighten it out. Let steam off continually instead of restraining it.

Hannah Williams Barred from Marrying Again

By The Associated Press

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 17—An interlocutory decree of divorce expressly permitting Lieut. Comdr. Jack Dempsey to remarry and prohibiting the former Hannah Williams from marrying again without court permission was filed in the Westchester county clerk's office yesterday.

The terms of the decree, which becomes final on Oct. 16 included the order by Supreme Court Referee J. Addison Young that "the plaintiff (Dempsey) May remarry, but the defendant (Mrs. Dempsey) may not remarry any other than the plaintiff during the plaintiff's lifetime except by express permission of the court."

The document contained no provisions for alimony nor for custody of the two Dempsey children, whose custody was awarded to the former heavyweight boxing champion after a hearing yesterday.

Wartime Marriages in Ohio Now Decline

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, July 16 — Ohio's wartime marriage tempo is tapering off, state health department records disclosed today.

"Thousands of marriageable boys are in the services," said Dr. R. H. Markwith, health director, "A decline was inevitable in the stepped-up rate dating from Pearl Harbor."

Dr. Markwith expects the stork, therefore, to trim production proportionately. The state birth rate hit an all time high of about 140,000 babies in 1942. The peak month for babies last year was October, 10 months after the nation entered the war.

Laboratory reports on the premarital blood tests, required by law of all who wed in Ohio since August, 1941, show a substantial drop for each month this year against the corresponding month in 1942.

the Nazis apparently are in the majority.

The Canadians made a very ...ight advance to take Gram- ...michele, which fell after only a ...ight resistance. Caltagirone was ...aken with no fighting at all.

The occupation of these two ...ey points, however, probably ...sealed off another large area be- ...tween the Allied flanks.

(Some observers estimated one- ...eighth of the area of Sicily was in allied hands.)

At the end of a week's lightning campaign the allied armies were thus firmly established at ...bridgeheads all along the south- ...east coast and in control of two of the most strategically im- ...portant roads in the area.

Targets on the mainland side of the ferry route across the strait ...shuddered under one of the ...northwest African air force's all- ...out assaults yesterday.

Vibo Valentia, Reggio Calabria, San Giovanni and Crotone on the gulf of Taranto were pounded in these attacks, while the Middle East force of Liberators pum- ...melled Bari on the upper part of the Italian heel.

Americans Advance

In the south-central sector, the American Seventh army under Lieut. Gen. Patton, continued its steady sweep northward across difficult hill country to extend its hold on supply and communica- ...tion routes linking the eastern and western sections of the island.

The Americans were credited with nearly 16,000 of the 20,000 total of axis prisoners taken by the allies since the start of the invasion. The U. S. troops also subdued six of the 12 additional towns listed in yesterday's com- ...munique as captured.

The communique also said the Americans inflicted "severe losses" upon the enemy "and cap- ...tured further important posi- ...tions" in their inland drives from Licata and Gela.

(A Vichy broadcast said the Americans had stormed into Agri- ...gento, important axis troop cen- ...ter about 25 miles northwest of Licata.)

Almost all the German defend- ...ers of Sicily were reported mass- ...ing on the Catania plain, which ...lies across the Eighth army's ...northward drive to Catania and ...Messina and extends west to Ger- ...bini, around which the axis still ...holds eight satellite airports.

The Eighth army encountered ...units of the crack Herman Goer- ...ing armored division north of ...Lentini yesterday and hurled it ...back although the Nazis, un- ...supported by their units were re- ...ported to have fought doggedly.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF KIDNAPING BOY

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 17—The arrest of a 20-year-old woman on a charge of kidnaping a three-year-old boy was announced today by FBI Agent E. E. Conroy, who said she related that her purpose was to try to convince her divorced husband she had a son.

Conroy, special agent in charge of the New York office of the federal bureau of investigation, identified the woman as Mary Penora of a lower East Side neighborhood, and said her arrest unfolded a story as bizarre as any in police records.

Conroy said the woman had signed a statement that she had kidnapped Jimmy DiMaggio on July 3, had taken him to Nashville to live in a Y. W. C. A. room, and had returned with him to New York on July 11, abandoning the boy in a 34th street restaurant.

The FBI chief said Miss Penora told agents she took the child to Nashville to make her divorced husband, Sgt. August Tilove, stationed at an army school near there, believe the boy was his own. He said she told agents she did not know that he had remarried recently.

Miss Patricia Dunlap Dies Near Sycamore

Special to The Star.

SYCAMORE, July 17—Miss Patricia Ann Dunlap, 21, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Dunlap of near Sycamore, died at 7:30 a. m. today in St. Anthony hospital, Columbus, after a thyroid operation which she underwent there yesterday. Born Feb. 23, 1922 at the family farm home south of here, she was a daughter of Bruce and Virtue Nichols Dunlap. She was a graduate of Sycamore High school. Robert Dunlap stationed at Camp Breckenridge, Ky. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday afternoon and burial will be in Pleasant View cemetery, Sycamore.

Munda Takes Heavy Blows from Bombers

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 17—Munda is being dive-bombed to destruction.

Eighty-two more tons of bombs burst Friday upon the Japanese air base whose defenders, from their foxholes, have seen the central Solomons skies darkened by Dauntless dive bombers and Avenger torpedo bombers from the first day of the American invasion on June 30.

More than 100 of these planes delivered the latest of these low level pick-your-target attacks which in a short while have exploded in excess of 300 tons of bombs on Munda.

The Lambeti plantation positions of the Japanese two miles east of the airdrome and the air field itself were yesterday's targets. The communique made no further reference to United States jungle fighters who have been closing in on Munda. Heavy rains swept the fighting sector.

McCormick, above, Chicago newspaper publisher, in the 1944 presidential primaries would be very acceptable to Wendell Willkie, the 1940 G.O.P. candidate. Willkie commented on reports that McCormick might run in the Illinois primaries by saying that he would like to stand against him.

9 BELIEVED DROWNED ON CHURCH OUTING

EAST TAWAS, Mich., July 17—Search was resumed today for the bodies of seven of nine youths believed to have drowned when more than a score of panic-stricken excursionists on a church group outing leaped into Tawas bay last night from a water-shipping scow.

Coast gaurdsmen had recovered the bodies of Ruth Smith, 16, and Henry Bascone, 16. Three boys and four girls still were missing after a check of East Tawas homes which had been opened to care for the survivors.

Gordon MacAndrews, boat livery proprietor and operator of the launch towing the scow, said the scow shipped water because some of those aboard shifted their positions.

Comes Home from Africa To Enter U. S. Army

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 17 — This Johnny came marching home from the African war front to join the army.

John L. Probert, 30, of Cincinnati, was in North Africa serving as an assistant secretary to Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark, when his Cincinnati draft board notified him he had been placed in 1-A.

Probert went to Africa early in 1942 for the Douglas Aircraft Co. and was assigned to General Clark after the invasion.

Last March the selective service summons caught up with Probert at a Red sea port and he came home. He has been sent to the U. S. army railway training center, New Orleans, La.

SEAMAN

have ended his training by now," the 24-year-old Briton said.

For about three months Eric and Pvt. Endicott were stationed at the same undisclosed British station. During that time they became close friends and shortly after the friendship started the two obtained furloughs at the same time. They returned to Eric's home and while there, William visited his parents for one day.

Mentions Home Town

In talking together Pvt. Endicott told William that his home was in Marion, O.

Shortly after that meeting William was assigned again to sea duty and his ship and one other craft of the British Navy were sent to North Africa. Fifteen hundred German prisoners were placed aboard his ship and the long crossing to America was started.

Not until shortly after arriving in America did he learn that aboard the ship was Prime Minister Winston Churchill. The British war chief's presence had been cloaked successfully. Only a few of the highest officers aboard the ship knew that the author of "blood, sweat and tears" was aboard.

After arriving in this country he wrote to his brother, telling him that he expected to remain in the United States for some time. That was in May of this year. In the meantime, however, he had forgotten Pvt. Endicott's address. Answering William's letter, the brother in the RAF mentioned the address.

Returning To Sea Again

At present William is stationed at a rest camp near Peakskill, N. Y., a camp completely in charge of the British. Shortly after he arrives back in camp on Wednesday of next week he expects to be sent to sea again.

Only recently he rounded out three and one-half years duty in the Royal Navy. In that time he has taken part in almost all types of sea duty, participated in the invasion of Madagascar more than a year ago, witnessed part of the "blitz" on England and also was in on the sinking of the the Bismark, Hitler's supposedly unsinkable battleship.

Before enlisting in the Navy he was engaged in various types of building trades.

His more than three years in the British service have proved three things to him, he said in an interview today: (1) the Germans are "a young bunch of chumps," (2) the Italians "aren't so hot," and (3) "United States is a pretty good ally in anyone's corner."

Pvt. Endicott is still stationed in England. He went there in September of 1942.

U. S. and Britain Learning How To Fight Together

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Divers elements go to make up the victory which the United Nations are forging from white-hot steel, and the masterful manner in which the Sicilian stronghold has been invaded emphasizes again that unprecedentedly unselfish allied cooperation is the ranking reason for success.

Now please don't start writing to tell me of war theaters where Americans and British look down their noses at each other. I'm ... about that from first-hand observation, and think it's too bad. But those cases seem to me to be exceptions to the rule, although I'm not so naive as to think all the spots of bother between our two countries have been rubbed out.

Taking it by and large, there exists between the allies a cordiality—and in many cases a real comradery—which wasn't even dreamed of in World war one.

Recalls Incident

Looking back at the last conflict, I recall turning my back on a British general and leaving the room, because he made a bitterly derogatory remark about a President of the United States. On the other hand, as an American correspondent at British general headquarters in France I shall not soon forget the consternation caused when some American officers, fresh from the United States with newly arrived troops, announced in so many words that they knew how to make war and didn't want any advice from the British.

That sort of thing went on, with Americans, British, French and other allies all contributing their share to the mess. The feeling ran from the lowest to the highest places, even resulting in shocking jealousies as to which ally should have supreme command in combined operations.

And the civilian populations took a hand in it. Americans got mad because Britons called "elevators" "lifts," doggone it, and the English made snooty remarks about the awful Yankee nasal twang.

What a change now! We are swapping our resources and our hospitality. There's no limit to the exchange, the lid is off. On the battle-fronts it's share and share alike, and the greatest soldiers of one country are happy to subordinate themselves to the command of a colleague from another nation—if that's best for the cause.

Horse-Sense Truce

The reason for this remarkable change? Well, let's not get sentimental but just call it a horse-sense truce.

Perhaps the most potent factor in drawing us together was the mortal danger the allies were in. We found ourselves fighting for our very survival against a barbaric enemy who had the initial advantage. Then too, we have been smart enough to profit by the mistakes and bickerings of the last war.

Never before has there been such allied cooperation and consequent coordination of effort in major military and naval operations. Not only is there coordination of three fighting arms—air, land and sea—among the forces of the individual nations, but this coordination extends to the combined allied forces. That is to say, all the services of each country in a given theater are at the call of the commander-in-chief, to intermingle as he chooses. It's one for all and all for one.

Brought African Victory

It was that willing unity which gave the allies their victory in North Africa. It's the mainspring of that greatest of all amphibious operations which is being carried out in Sicily.

The fair progney of this cooperation are many. One of the most striking developments of the war is the specillalized training of the various branches like the commandos and paratroops—in many cases a joint effort. History never has seen such well prepared forces go into battle as now are taking the field.

Many of the American, English, Canadian and French soldiers who fought their way up the beaches of Sicily from the landing barges, underwent months—and some of them years—of terrific training which was far more strenuous than the actual battle experiences. They not only are physically perfect, but they know their jobs the way a pianist knows his keys. Thousands of these specialists received their training in an allied camp.

The antithesis of this cooperation and coordination is the axis imbroglio in Sicily. These Italians in some places are surrendering rather than fight for the hated Boche, and the Nazis are reported shooting their own allies.

ON CAMP FACULTY

Rev. Eldred Johnson of Central Christian church will be a member of the faculty of a camp for junior high school age children of the Disciple church at Camp Crag, near Akron, next week. The week following he will enter a two-weeks ministers' study course at Columbia university in New York City.

WINS LEGION OF MERIT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17—The war department announced award of the legion of merit to Staff Sgt. Herman E. Showers of Philo, O., in recognition for devising and constructing means to obtain correct readings on the surface of the ocean and the air above while engaged in observation work.

WINS "M" PENNANT

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., July 17—The Maritime commission awarded an "M" pennant and victory fleet flag to the Union Metal Mfg. Co., third such honor bestowed upon the firm for its war efforts. Previously received were the Army-Navy "E" honors and the treasury department's 10 per cent war savings band flag.

ITALIAN RAILROADS TARGET OF BOMBERS

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 17—Britain-based RAF bombers smashed at Italy's transportation system with a second straight night assault across the Alps last night by blasting the power facilities which feed Mussolini's electrified railways while Mosquito bombers battered Munich on the German-Italian Brenner line.

Last night's targets in Italy, as was the case the night before, were transformer and switching stations through which flow the current generated in the Alps to keep Italian rail supplies moving.

The offensive against the continent was kept up in daylight raids today by fleets of American-type twin-engined bombers which started shuttling across the channel with the rising sun.

Abbeville, important French railway center, was the target for American medium bombers which struck at dusk yesterday to leave great fires burning in that control point for all rail traffic to the north.

The raid was made at the cost of one bomber and protected by a thick blanket of allied fighters.

The dusk attack followed up night blows by the RAF which cut a path of ruin from northern Italy to the low countries.

In releasing additional information on the Thursday night raids over northern Italy, the air ministry said the attacks were on electrical nerve centers and were closely tied up with the battle of Sicily in crippling the Italian railway system. Three of the four transformers hit were near Bologna, rail center through which runs the Brenner pass line from Munich over which reinforcements from Germany must travel.

Italians Packed And Waiting To Give Up

By The Associated Press

AN ALLIED FORCE COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, July 15 — A train loaded with Italian soldiers captured in Sicily rolled slowly through the African tableland and a Yank riding along an adjacent highway in a jeep couldn't restrain himself.

"Hey, where you fellows been?" he called.

Back came the reply in perfect English:

"We've been packed and waiting three weeks ago. Where have you been?"

SHORTAGE OF GAS FEARED NEXT WINTER

NEW YORK, July 17 — The American Gas association warned today that certain critical areas throughout the country might suffer cooking and heating gas shortages next winter unless all consumers practiced strict conservation.

The shortage was expected to hit household users of natural gas and gas made from oil and coal because of the great need of the armed forces and war industry for all types of fuel, AGA said.

To inform householders how to save gas, many of the organization's 500 member companies soon will launch local advertising campaigns. AGA represents 80 per cent of the gas industry.

If next winter is severe, natural gas shortages may occur in Ohio, western Pennsylvania, western New York, southern California, central areas of Missouri, Illinois and Indiana to northern Michigan, the eastern half of Kansas and the Missouri valley from Kansas City to Minneapolis.

This would include cities such as Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Syracuse, Cincinnati, Dayton, Los Angeles, San Diego, Detroit and St. Louis.

Sec. Knox Says Columbus Turning Out Helldivers

WASHINGTON, July 17—Navy Secretar Frank Knox says "real progress is now being made" in producing Helldiver bombers at Curtiss-Wright's warplant plant in Columbus, O.

Knox said last week the Navy dive bomber was not yet in production, but he told a press conference yesterday:

"I made a statement that the Helldiver aircraft were not as yet in production. The assistant secretar for air (Artemus Gates) was inspecting the plant on the same day that I made the statement. He informs me that this plane is in production, and that real progress is now being made in producing it.

"As you know, the Navy is in great need of this combat plane, and we believe the production log jam has now been broken."

NOAH STONEBURNER DIES

SYCAMORE, July 17—Noah Stoneburner, 76, died in his home at Belle Vernon at 3:30 a. m. today after an illness of five years. He was a resident of Belle Vernon 43 years and operated a theshing machine in the community for a number of years. Surviving besides his widow are a son, Ray, at home and a brother, Isaac, of McCutcheonville. Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the Mt. Zion church and burial will be made in Mt. Zion cemetery.

ALLIES EXPAND GAINS. The Allied command has announced the capture of 15 more towns in Sicily—including Vizzini in the central sector of the front and Canicatti at the western end—as the allies push on. Arrows indicate allied drive. Black line represents approximate battle front.

Americans Stop Nazis and Italians in Fierce Battle To Save Beachhead

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press Correspondent Representing The Combined American Press.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN SICILY, July 12.—(Delayed) — Battling more than 100 tanks with everything but their bare hands, attacking even while being attacked, weary American troops fought for 10 hours yesterday (July 11) to beat off an enemy drive which threatened to collapse the entire central sector of the American invasion front.

On three sides they fought desperately with their backs to the wall. Tanks literally ran over and around them, smashing their way to within 1,000 yards of the beachhead at Gela.

But still the Yanks fought on—and they whipped the enemy. With magnificent courage, three tanks and a few field guns, they whipped the Italians and the Hermann Goering panzer division to a standstill.

Today this veteran American infantry division, toughened by the Tunisian campaign, has the situation in hand.

At one crucial period late yesterday morning, artillerymen were shooting at point blank range over open sights to break up the enemy tank attack. Anti-aircraft guns were dug into position as the troops were digging in on the beach. A colonel was manning an anti-tank gun and staff officers were on the beach to see that ammunition and guns kept coming ashore.

Even the navy joined in with its big guns to help stop the enemy drive.

"In my opinion it was the greatest exhibition of guts and discipline in the history of the American army," said Lieut. Col. Curtis of Amarillo, Texas.

While we were under constant attack, the commanding general sent a message to our troops: "We attack tonight."

He was confident the enemy would be stopped and knew that this was the psychological moment to strike back.

By nightfall our regiment had only nine rounds of mortar ammunition left, and the enemy was returning to the attack on both flanks, but our troops carried up ammunition under machinegun and shellfire. Then in the moonlight they attacked.

Most of our troops had had no sleep for more than 48 hours. They had suffered from sea-sickness on the rough trip en route to Sicily. They had fought across the Sicilian beaches and trudged doggedly up ridges in the face of enemy fire. They had had nothing to eat for two days except hard rations.

Despite all this they attacked, and by dawn one regiment had captured Ponte Olivo airport five miles north of Gela and another had driven nearer to Niscemi.

The invasion beachhead in the central sector is safe.

Ceramics Expert Quits WPB Job To Drive Capital Cab

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17 — If you're going to ride cabs in Washington, watch your tipping, especially if your driver is a middle-aged sort of cubby with something of the executive in his mien. That could be William H. Smith, 57, who probably could buy and sell most of his riders.

Smith, formerly president of pottery firms in Ohio and West Virginia, quit a $4,600-a-year job as a priority expert in the war production board (WPB) and turned cabby out of what he calls "disgust over government red tape." Now he earns $10 to $12 a day.

"I felt I was doing no good in WPB," Smith told a reporter. "I feel that I'm actually doing more toward the war effort now than when I was a government specialist, being overruled constantly by higher-ups who didn't know anything."

Smith says he was attending to his own ceramics and pottery selling business back in East Liverpool, Ohio, one day when a telephone call from a Washington official brought him to the capital. Previously he had been president of a pottery manufacturing firm in Chester, W. Va.

"But there was too much buck passing and not getting anything done," he declared. "I was an industrial specialist and I'd give a ruling on a priority for a manufacturer, but my ruling would be thrown overboard by some one who didn't know anything about it. Others who had decisions to make just wouldn't make them."

"Well, I had to do something," Smith continued. "I'm the sort who has to keep busy. My doctor had been talking to me a lot about getting outside work, so this is it."

Smith scoffs at some of his friends' description of him as a millionaire out having fun.

"Even in my palmiest days, I was far from being a millionaire," he laughed, "but I can say that I'm not in need."

He said he was still a large stockholder in the manufacturing firm whose presidency he resigned in 1937.

7 FIRES

Dec. 8 last year and the other on March 25 of this year.

Two blazes confessed by the records. One was a trash fire at the rear of a downtown store. The other blaze not on the records took place in the boy's home. Curtains in the house and a few other items were destroyed. The boy told police he set this fire because "my father gave me a licking and I was mad."

Additional fires possibly started by the boy are now being investigated by police.

In addition to the seven arson confessions, police report that the boy has been arrested twice previously but on different charges.

They said that both times he was taken into custody on charges of making false telephone calls. According to police, he would call wholesale or retail grocery houses and tell them to bring groceries to a certain address. When they would arrive at the reported house, they of course were told no groceries had been ordered.

Police also say the boy has in the past called up people he didn't know and attempted to frighten them by telling them gross fabrications. He has also turned in false fire alarms and false ambulance calls, police say.

According to police, the boy has not committed any of these offenses recently but in past years committed them frequently.

KILLED ALONG HIGHWAY

MRS. L. B. VERIGAN CLAIMED BY DEATH

Passes Away After 9-Week Illness; Funeral Sunday.

Mrs. Minnie Verigan, 60, wife of L. B. Verigan of the Wellinger road south of Marion, died in City hospital at 5:45 p. m. yesterday after an illness of nine weeks.

She was a resident of Marion county 20 years, coming here from Portland, Ore. Born in Athens county, O., Jan. 5, 1883, she was a daughter of George and Katherine Phillips, the father a native of West Virginia and the mother of Muskingum county, O. Aug. 6, 1924 she was married to Verigan in Vancouver, Wash.

Surviving besides the husband are the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Marie Spires of 466 Davids street, Mrs. Izona Holcomb of McArthur, O., Eugene Phillips of 701 Wood street, Pearl Phillips of Columbus, Bert Phillips of Dexter, O., Mrs. Bessie Doddrill of Vinton and Ernest T. Phillips of Wilkesville, O.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 1:15 p. m. in the home and at 2 in the Wesley Methodist church of which Mr. Verigan was a member. Rev. D. N. Kelly will officiate. Monday at 2 p. m. further services will be conducted in McArthur and burial will be made in McArthur cemetery. Friends may call at the home after 8 tonight.

Ravenna Dormitories at Plant May Be Moved

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17 — Dormitories built in 1940 for women workers at the Ravenna ordnance plant may be moved to another site.

Officials, noting that the dormitories had not been filled, said other new housing facilities had met requirements of all the workers whose numbers are being reduced as a result of schedule revisions. They added that the women's quarters are too far from the plant and lack necessary facilities.

Saying privately that housing in the area actually exceeded requirements unforeseeable before the war, the officials said the National Housing Agency had considered transferring the dormitories to Springfield, O. This plan was abandoned and another site probably will be selected.

The buildings are demountable and can be moved easily.

President Signs Bill Extending Life of CCC

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17—A bill extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC) has been signed by President Roosevelt—with the understanding that it permits "standardizing" of commodities where necessary for a price-fixing program.

The President said the language of the measure was so ambiguous that he felt obliged to give his own interpretation. He wanted, he said, to be certain the office of price administration is allowed to set up standards in maximum price regulations.

The President said the war agency bill had been interpreted to ban the use of grade-labeling standards in any case, unless they had been previously established by industry acceptance or government action.

Rip Sewell's New Dipsy Doodle Pitch Has National League Batters Breaking Their Backs

One Hitter Calls It Cross Between a Parachute Jump and a Yo-Yo; It's Made Rip Leading Twirler.

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There was that tune out of Tin Pan Alley a while back about "The Dipsy Doodle That Gets in Your Hair," and National league batters, who've been breaking their backs on Rip Sewell's new Sunday pitch this season, tell you the guy who wrote that little number didn't know the half of it.

This probably is the funniest dipsy-doo giant since Wes Ferrell presented his nuthin' ball. It's a little thing Sewell cooked up in his spare time and finally perfected, and since he discovered the "dodo," the Pittsburgh Pirates' twirler has become the leading elbower in the National league. At the moment, he has 13 wins, including a 9-5 job over the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday.

One batter described the new toss as a cross between a parachute jump and a yo-yo, which gives you a rough idea. It's a kind of cross-eyed curve that breaks up and down instead of side to side. Rip throws it without any more steam than you'll find in a bowl of mush.

It was the subject of almost as much gassing and grousing at the All-Star get-together in Philadelphia as the Brooklyn "rhubarb."

The clan that gathered in Philly early this week told about the time Rip served the dipsy-do up to Dom DallessandRo, the short Chicago gardener who is built something like a fire hydrant. Dom had two strikes on him and watched this thing coming up overhead, figuring it was a pitch that got away from Rip. It hovered up there for a moment, then dropped over and the umps had to call strike three. Needless to say, Dom called it something else.

"I," he roared at Rip, "have a good mind to come out there with this bat and thump on your noggin for a while."

Bobo Newsom has agreed to report to the Browns to pitch Sunday, just as everyone expected he would, even when he was howling loudest about the injustice of it all. Ducky Medwick, too, thinks his sale to the Giants might be a good thing, on account of it'll get him out of Brooklyn. And the Bums, meanwhile, blew a 3-2 decision to the Boston Braves yesterday.

Yesterday's Pirate win, coupled with the Dodger defeat, left Pittsburgh only 3½ games out of second place. The Brooklyns were held to five hits by Nate Andrews. Johnny McCarthy, who used to be a Dodger, cropped in with a triple that broke up the ball game.

These were the only tussles in the National league, while in the American, the New York Yankees nipped the Athletics 6-5 on Frankie Crosetti's eighth-inning run-making single. Since the Boston Red Sox knocked off the Washington Senators 4-1 behind Oscar Judd's five-hit hurling, this boosted the Yanks' lead to 5½ games and dropped the Nats into third place, back of the idle Detroit Tigers.

In the only other game, the St. Louis Browns connected for only four hits, but bunched three of them in the first inning to nose out the Cleveland Indians, 4-3.

DERRINGER TO PITCH TO RED LEGS TODAY

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 17—Paul Derringer, who used to fling for the Cincinnati Reds, will be there today throwing to his former teammates as the Reds and Chicago Cubs tangle in the second of a four game series.

The big Cub righthander holds a .500 average against the Redlegs this year, winning the first game early in the season here but taking it on the chin in extra innings in the Windy City in the second.

Either Johnny Vander Meer, who stood the American Leaguers on their ears for two and two-thirds innings last Thursday in the All-Star game, or Ray Starr will do the mound work for Cincinnati.

Following today's game the Reds and Cubs wind up their present series with a double header Sunday. Idle Monday and Tuesday, the Cincinnati boys play host to the rebellious Brooklyn Dodgers in a twin bill Wednesday.

Word around the Redleg clubhouse has it that Leo (The Lip) Durocher, ebullient manager of the Bums, is in for more trouble when he takes the field against the Reds.

During Cincinnati's recent sojourn in Brooklyn, several of the Reds engaged in strong verbal gymnastics with the Lip and they are anxious to take up matters where they left off.

MARTIN'S BATTING AVERAGE SLUMPS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 17 — In one of the sharpest slumps of the American Association season, Milwaukee's Hershel Martin dropped from .371 to .337 with only two hits in 24 trips to the plate last week to relinquish the batting leadership he had held most of the year to his teammate, Grey Clarke.

Clarke climbed into the lead with a .399 after collecting seven blows in 25 times at bat. Willard Pike of Indianapolis had posted a .343 but failed to make the "top ten" bracket because he had not been to bat 195 or more times in games computed through Wednesday.

Following Martin in third place was Gil English of Indianapolis with .317. He was closely trailed by Phil Weintraub of Toledo, .316; Joe Moore, Indianapolis, .315; Chet Wieczorek, Columbus, .298; Stew Hofferth, Indianapolis, .290; and Tommy McBride, Louisville, .286.

Moore had the most hits, 84; Jackie Saltzgaver of Kansas City and Hofferth led in doubles with 18 apiece; Steve Barath of Louisville and Fred Vaughan of Indianapolis were tops in triples with eight, and Milwaukee's Bill Norman still paced the home run hitters with 11.

Jim Trexler maintained his pitching honors with 12 wins and only one loss while Emmett O'Neill of Louisville boosted his strikeout record to 70, to hold the lead in that department.

BOXING PROMOTER DIES

Golf Holds Sport Interest

Interest of Marion sports fans will be focused on the long and rolling fairways of the Marion Country club tomorrow when linksmen from the Mar-O-Del municipal course and the Country club meet in the first of two inter club matches in which will be incorporated a blind bogey tournament played for the benefit of the Red Cross. Tee-off time is scheduled for 8:30 tomorrow morning.

The inter club match itself was originally intended to be for Red Cross charity but to enable both city clubs to receive official recognition from the United States Golf Association for their part in aiding that worthy organization, separate blind bogey events were decided to be the benefit tourneys. City golf leaders agreed that the club match would not have been fair to both clubs since only the winning course would have received certificates of recognition.

However, by using the match scores of each player as marks in the bogey, a more satisfactory and just set up for all participants concerned will undoubtedly be realized. Sponsors of the bogey benefit report that probably the first and second place finishers from each club will be awarded certificates.

About 30 swingers from each club are expected to be blasting the balata-covered pellet for both the Red Cross and their respective clubs tomorrow.

Proceeds for the tournament will be obtained by charging a fee to each participant. All money obtained through this source will go to the Red Cross, exclusively.

These golfing activities will hold the athletic spotlight for Marion in the morning and in the afternoon, a contest between Lord's Jewelry and the all colored Malleable Co. softball team of Columbus is expected to attract many diamond followers to Garfield park. Starting time for this doubleheader will be 2 p. m.

The jewelers will be gunning for a long denied sixth victory of the season in the curtain raiser. The locals have been defeated three times. The Malleable outfit has a highly admirable record of 12 wins and five losses, inflicted by some of Columbus' toughest softball teams.

Two of the top hurlers in the Capital City circuit will work in Sunday's twin bill: Fred Oden and Smitty Truss. Manager Bob Putman of Lords reports that he will use Coxie Weiss in the opening tussle and Harold "Fat" Millisor in the nightcap.

GOLDSMITH STAKE RANDALL FEATURE

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 17—The $2,760 Goldsmith Maid stake, feature of five events carded at North Randall today, gives His Excellency, world champion trotter of 1942, a chance for his third Randall victory, second over Scotland's Comet.

A candidate for the $40,000 Hambletonian, Mighty Margaret tries for her second Randall win in the $1,000 25 class trot.

Phonograph rose to equal Hambletonian favoritism with Volo Song yesterday by traveling the second mile of the $6,805 champion stallion three-year-old trotting stake in 2:02¾.

The brown Volomite-sired trotting flash, kept out of action last year by a leg injury, twice trimmed the contending Worthy Boy by a length and a quarter and sped to a straight-heat victory. Volo Song, recuperating from a cold, was unable to compete yesterday when the newcomer beat his record by three-quarters of a second.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Tennis Interest Wanes As Players Enter Service

Active participation and interest in general in tennis at the Y.M.C.A. courts have tapered off to such a degree that the sport has taken a back seat to about every other athletic activity in Marion, Y officials report.

Loss of some of the best racket-wielders from Marion and vicinity to the armed services and unfavorable weather conditions for most of the spring and early summer have mainly brought about the lagging of tennis here, court authorities said. In past years, many intra-Y.M.C.A. tourneys and matches with Y's of other cities have been played with many individuals, young and old, male and female, joining in actively or as staunch backers. No competitive events have been scheduled by the tennis committee for this season. In fact, only one meeting of the committee has been held, that being to organize personnel and local rules for the courts and not to plan any tournament.

Thorough Preparation

The three Y courts in Vernon Heights were opened last month for regular play of Y.M.C.A. members. The courts had just undergone their fifth remodeling since they were built. Workers toiled diligently in eliminating the flaws in the courts and making the entire tennit set-up an enticement to Marion residents.

Shortly after the formal opening of the courts, free tennis instruction was offered to any interested Marion inhabitant. A few persons, but not nearly the number expected, have turned out to learn the fundamentals of tennis. Bruce Nystrom, supervisor of the courts this year, has been in charge of all lessons given. He has been assisted by a few other individuals who have been in the local tennis limelight for several seasons.

Instructions Continue

The instructions are still being given at the courts, John Dreher, chairman of the Y tennis committee, reports, and any Marionite who wishes to master the fast game of tennis may still acquire tutoring from competent teachers.

Earl N. Hale, executive secretary of the Y, has announced that any person wishing to play tennis regularly at the Vernon Heights court, may do so by registering for a full time or special part time membership in the Y. M. C. A. In addition to tennis, this membership will entitle the individual to engage in all sports, social events and other activities sponsored by the Y.

Same Elsewhere

However, from numerous reports, Marion is not the only city having tennis troubles. Dreher says that Galion, in other years a hot-bed of tennis, does not have a semblance of the interest shown in the past.

Although the Y courts are not receiving much play, Vic Dorris, city recreation supervisor, says the two parks incorporated in the new recreation program are having good years as far as tennis playing goes.

The two parks, Lincoln and McKinley, opened their single courts later than the Y but are nevertheless being used to a greater extent, Dorris adds. No charge is assessed tennis players in the parks, Dorris says.

County Golf Champ in Seabees

John Rife, three time Marion county golf champion, will make his last competitive golfing appearance in Marion in civilian garb for the duration Sunday when he plays with the Mar-O-Del club in an inter-club match with the Marion Country club for Red Cross charity. Southpaw Johnny will don the uniform of the U. S. Navy's Seabees Tuesday.

Rife enlisted in the construction corps of the fleet about three weeks ago and was inducted at the Columbus Naval recruiting headquarters last Tuesday. He will return to Columbus next Tuesday and from there expects to be assigned to the Seabee basic training school at Williamsburg, Va.

Given Farewell

Male members of Mar-O-Del, Rife's home course for the past several years, honored him with a farewell party at the clubhouse Wednesday night. Preceding festivities, all members, including Johnny, took a one round whirl around Mar-O-Del's nine holes.

Rife's principal mark of distinction in local golfing circles is the Marion Star trophy for county golf champions, of which he won permanent possession by taking first honors in the event three straight years, 1939, 1940 and 1941. He has been the only Marion linksman to acquire the trophy for "keeps."

Rife won the Mar-O-Del club championship tourney in 1941 and 1942. He was awarded with temporary trophies for those two years. In addition, he has constantly placed among the high finishers in various city-wide and club tourneys for the past several years.

Best Score 33

Johnny's lowest nine hole round was a 33 and his 18 hole medal was a 69 fired in the final round of the 1941 county tournament. This three-under-par mark was the big factor in his 4 and 3 defeat of Bud Baker, long hitting Mar-O-Del amateur, now in the Army.

Rife also holds the Mar-O-Del record for holes-in-one with two aces to his credit. Both of these were made on the 164 yard, par three, number 2 hole. However, Rife considers his foremost golfing achievement a double eagle two, made on the 456 yard, number nine, at Mar-O-Del, two years ago.

O.S.U. Grid Chances Thin As Old Dime

By FRITZ HOWELL
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O. — Compared with the 1942 Bucks—who looked like a million bucks in winning the Western Conference and National football championships—Ohio State university's 1943 prospects appear as thin as an 1899 dime.

After tucking away the two titles last fall, Coach Paul E. Brown looked over his surviving talent and declared:

"For 1943 we have the makings of one of the greatest football teams this country has ever seen."

He based his statement on the fact he was losing only two starters by graduation; that 39 of the squad of 43 would be ready to go again; and that some of the finest freshmen talent ever produced was on hand to plug the gaps—if any. Talent was three or four deep, everywhere.

The Draft Arrives

Then came the draft and enlistments.

"Precision Paul" counted noses again and mid-way through the summer practice grind he found:

Thirty-nine freshmen, about 30 of them only 17 years old, but with more than half of them due to register for the draft by September;

A starting tackle and three substitutes slated for tackle, quarterback and center berths, deferred from selective service because of such things as varicose veins, asthma and deafness.

A substitute end who will be back because he's married and has a three-year-old child; and

A faculty member, past 30 years of age, eligible because he's enrolled in quest of a master's degree.

PAUL E. BROWN
"We'll Be in There Trying"

Six others, including two of last year's starters, are on the campus. Whether they will be eligible is not known, for all are in the Army reserve and enrolled under limited service regulations in the dental and agricultural colleges. Such students were barred recently from intercollegiate golf, and if the rule holds good for football, the Bucks will lose some of their best bets.

Some Old Grads Back

In the limited service classification are such luminaries as Les Horvath of Cleveland, regular right halfback the last two years, who was graduated in June, but who is eligible under revised Big Ten rules as long as he's enrolled in any portion of the university. Don Steinberg and Thornton Dixon, both of Toledo, an end and tackle, are in the same category, Dixon having completed his three years of varsity play in 1941—but willing to try it if the Army says "okay."

Ohio State has no Navy or Marine units on the campus, the only service groups for which football has been approved.

What does Coach Brown think? He has lost only two games in the two seasons in the big time after graduating from the high school ranks, think of this wartime football?

"It is one of the most interesting experiments we've ever run into," he declares. "When I was coaching at Massillon [illegible] we had 17-year-old kids on the junior high teams. Now we are using the 17-year-olds on the varsity in the toughest league in the country.

Weight Off 22 Pounds

"Our squad, in weight, is about 22 pounds per man under last season's, but we have some speed, especially in running to the left. If we can hang on to the majority of the youngsters we have, and can pick up a few more good freshmen in September, we'll get along.

Brown started the summer grind with 57 freshmen and already has lost 18 with more to don the khaki soon.

"We are at a disadvantage, of course, but we'll be in there trying," says Brown. "After all, football is rather minor these days."

The Bucks meet Iowa, Hawkeyes, Missouri, Great Lakes, Purdue, Northwestern, Indiana, Pittsburgh, Illinois and Michigan on consecutive week-ends. Pretty tough for a batch of 17-year-olds.

MOUND STRATEGY COSTS TRIBE GAME

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, July 17—The St. Louis Browns had Cleveland Indians Manager Lou Boudreau wondering today about his mound strategy after they trumped the Tribe's ace, Al Smith, in the first inning debacle of a night game in which two relief hurlers held the Browns to one hit in eight and two-thirds innings.

The Browns won last night's contest 4 to 3 after relief hurler Mike Naymick pitched no-hit ball for five and two-thirds innings and fanned seven batters. The right-hander took over after Smith allowed three runs on three hits and as many walks. St. Louis tallied its fourth marker when Naymick forced Harland Clift to hit into a double play, scoring Mark Christman.

Clift hit a perfect double play ball to second baseman Ray Mack, who could have prevented the deciding run by throwing to Boudreau to start the routine twin killing by way of second and first, or by tagging Mike Kreevich and then throwing to first. Instead, he threw to first and Christman scored the winning marker before Kreevich could be run down.

Smith pitched to six batters in the hectic first inning without retiring any of them.

Allie Reynolds seeks his fourth mound victory today in the third game of the series. Denny Galehouse will pitch for the Browns.

Red Bird Hurler Allows 6 Hits as Columbus Wins

By The Associated Press

The Indianapolis Indians, apparently tired of wrestling with Milwaukee for the American association lead, came from behind twice last night to sweep a doubleheader from the Brewers in the start of a crucial series and coast to the front with a two-game advantage. The scores were 3-2 and 9-4.

Floyd Bevens, Kansas City's relief hurler, started for the Blues against Louisville and picked up a 3-1 victory on a scattering of nine blows; the Toledo Mudhens blasted Minneapolis 13 to 4; and third-place Columbus moved within three games of Milwaukee by blanking St. Paul 2-0 as Lefty Dokins registered his eighth win of the season on a six-hit job.

NEW YORK, July 17—A couple weeks ago Branch Rickey was defending the Giants"—and incidentally his own—failure—to buy certain ball players by saying that during the winter bartering season both clubs were interested only in the kind of athletes who could help win a pennant . . . The Giants, he added, might change their attitude and show some interest in candidates for a sixth or seventh-place team . . . Wonder if he had Ducky Medwick in mind all the time? . . . But somehow we can't see the Newsom and Medwick deals helping the Dodgers along toward the flag—not this year.

Numbers Game — George S. May is putting up $10,000 prize money for the Tam O'Shanter golf tourney at Chicago next week and requires only a $1 war stamp purchase for admission . . . Maybe George, who is slightly publicity-conscious, realizes he got a million bucks worth of free advertising out of the pros' rebellion against wearing numbers last year.

Service Dept. — Pfc. William C. Jost, former New York High school and Huntington, N. Y., semi-pro footballer who is a marine M. P. somewhere in the South Pacific, has been beaten only once in four contests in which he matches his long-distance football passing against the drop kicking of local athletes. It took an 85 yard dropkick with the wind to do that, as Jost's passes have averaged 70 yards . . . Sgt. Clayton Heafner, who obtained a ten-day furlough to play in the Tam O'Shanter open golf tourney, recently fired a 66 at Spartanburg, S. Today's Guest Star — Tommy Morgan, Welch (W-Va.) Daily News: "Fishing seems to be a more popular sport in McDowell county than getting married . . . Reports show that during June, traditional month of nuptials, more men applied for fishing than for marriage licenses . . . Maybe men are getting wiser."

"Hit Parade of 1943" Starts Week at Palace

Musical Groups Featured; Laurel and Hardy Comedy Included In Program.

... of song, music and ... presented at the Palace ... "The Hit Parade ... Sunday through Wednesday ... Susan Hayward and ... heading the cast, ... moves at a rapid pace ... engaging situation to ... is studded with star ... the entertainment ... Freddy Martin and his ... Count Basie and his ... provide musical highlights along with such other ... as Ray McKinley and his ... the Golden Gate Quartet, the Three Cheers, the Music Maids, and Pops and Louie.

Miss Hayward and John Carroll start out as natural enemies in the film. Carroll has stolen one of her songs and is plugging it as his own, and she is determined to teach him a stiff lesson. However, the little man with the bow and arrow enters the scene and makes a complete change in Susan's plans. Prominent in the film's supporting cast are Gail Patrick, Walter Catlett, Eve Arden, and Melville Cooper.

On the same bill is "Air Raid Wardens," starring the comic team, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy. The comedians don't poke fun at anything but themselves, and amid the laughs succeed in teaching an impressive lesson in patriotism.

The comedy partners, as bicycle dealers, are turned down by the armed forces and become local air raid wardens. All goes well until they try to enforce a blackout, run afoul the uncooperative Edgar Kennedy, and are "fired" as a result. Eventually they uncover a nest of saboteurs and emerge as public heroes.

"Young and Willing," which will play Thursday through Saturday, is a comedy revolving around the experiences of six young stage hopefuls who become engaged in all kinds of pranks to gain the attention of theatrical impresario Bob Benchley.

"Aerial Gunner," also slated for Thursday through Saturday, is an exciting film story of one branch of our fighting men. Chester Morris, Richard Arlen and Jimmy Lydon share honors as the stars of the film which features Dick Purcell and Lita Ward.

It's a red blooded story of a lifetime feud between two boys from the city streets. One becomes a gunnery instructor and the other winds up as one of his students.

Comedy Film at Marion

"I Walked with a Zombie" and "Ladies Day" Now Showing.

"I Walked with a Zombie," starring James Ellison and "Ladies Day" with Lupe Velez and Eddie Albert will be shown at the Marion theater starting with a midnight show Saturday and continuing through Monday.

A remote island in the West Indies is the locale of "I Walked with a Zombie." The picture deals with the activities of a trained nurse who goes to the island to take care of a planter's wife and finds herself battling against native sorcery.

Comedy and romance are the twin themes of "Ladies' Day" as the film presents a story of behind-the-scene woes in a big-league baseball club.

Brenda Joyce and Richard Fraser in "Thumbs Up" and "Priorities on Parade," starring Ann Miller and Jerry Colonna, will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Joyce is cast as an American singer trying for a stage break in war-time London. She takes an aircraft factory job to further her stage ambitions. When a spiteful fellow-worker exposes her phoney war-effort pose, she redeems herself in a highly dramatic climax.

Gay tunes and dances are a feature of the musical "Priorities on Parade." Jerry Colonna covers a lot of ground, portraying a trombone player, a band manager, sandwich salesman, aircraft worker and press agent.

"Riders of the Northwest Mounted" and "Mantrap" with Henry Stephenson are on the bill for Thursday through Saturday.

Henry Stephenson has the starring lead in "Mantrap" in which he portrays an elderly ex-Scotland Yard detective.

HUMPHREY BOGART wins and marries Julie Bishop in "Action in the North Atlantic," now showing through Thursday at the Ohio.

Lupe Velez One Of Stars in Feature Picture at State

Lupe Velez and Leon Errol in "Mexican Spitfire's Elephant" and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," starring Donald O'Connor and Gloria Jean, will be presented at the State Theater Sunday and Monday.

Laughter, romance and music are all found in the film "When Johnny Comes Marching Home". The story deals with the adventures of one of Uncle Sam's soldiers who returns home on furlough.

John Howard and Margaret Chapman in "Submarine Raider" and Charles Bickford and Evelyn Ankers in "Burma Convoy" are billed for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Starting Thursday and continuing through Saturday, "Miss Annie Rooney", starring Shirley Temple and William Gargan, and "Frontier Pony Express", with Roy Rogers, will be shown.

ON CEDAR POINT BILL

Today ... and his band will supply the musical entertainment at Cedar Point ... Lake Erie from July 23 through July 29. Featured vocalists with ... are Peggy Mann and Teddy Taylor. Ina Ray Hutton and her all-male orchestra will follow Powell with a week's engagement beginning July 30.

The great library of Alexandria was burned in 640 by Amrou, on the orders of the Caliph Omar.

MOVABLE HANGARS

MIDDLETOWN AIRPORT, Pa., Army airplanes now can fly their own hangars into airports in the front areas where quick cover is needed. A demountable hangar has been developed which not only can be transported by air but can be erected in a matter of hours. Completely fabricated sections of fire-resistant canvas form the walls and ends of the building.

Sea Drama Is Depicted

Bogart and Massey Have Roles in Thriller at Ohio Theater.

Now ... at the Ohio Theater ... through Thursday, is "Action in the North Atlantic," starring Humphrey Bogart, Raymond Massey and Julie Bishop.

The heroism of the Merchant Marine ... is the theme of this film which tells of a ... convoy ... with ... of war ... The tanker is torpedoed by a submarine. The men jump into ... as the tanker ... and ... sinks.

As the sub comes to the surface ... Captain Jarvis Ray ... Massey, First Mate Rossi, Humphrey Bogart and others leap from their life boat and swim to a raft, where they float about for eleven days, before they are rescued by a United States destroyer.

Safe in New York, the men gather at the Maritime Union Hall, eager to sign up again. This time they sail on a new Liberty Ship, the "Sea Witch" bound with a convoy for Murmansk. More adventure awaits the ship and crew before the cargo is unloaded.

"The Ox-Bow Incident," starring Henry Fonda, Dana Andrews and Mary Beth Hughes, will start Friday and continue through Monday.

The film is taken from one of the most outstanding novels of last season by Walter Van Tilburg Clark and the setting is in the far west of a day gone by.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, July 18

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds indications of splendid success in several avenues that may be novel or unique. The talents, faculties and forces are keyed to spectacular achievement of unpredictable climax. However, this excellent prospect may be negatived by a tendency to excesses, extravagances, impetuosity and turbulence. This is magnified in personal or intimate relationships. Be calm.

Those whose birthday it is may have a grand opportunity for distinguishing themselves in some sort of novel or unique achievement of outstanding significance, possibly to shine in the public eye. All creative forces and faculties may be stimulated and pitched to great progress. At the same time the emotions, impulses and desires are likewise under impetus, and may prove decisively detrimental. This may react upon domestic and affectional or social harmony to the point of regrettable strife and disruption. In all affairs be restrained.

A child born on this day may be possessed of excellent creative abilities of an inventive, intellectual and scientific nature, which should assure success. But intemperate and extravagant inclinations should be rigidly surpressed, lest there be failure and disruption.

For Monday, July 19

Monday's astrological forecast is a most important one, judging by the lunar transits. The mind may be profound, serious and concentrated, and the energies mobilized to tackle major objectives or projects with industry, determination and continuity, until desired aims are achieved. Elders or superiors may recognize and reward this stability, perhaps to the point of legacy. Work for security, lasting merit and responsibility.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of decisive and enduring effort in the direction of attaining sound and established objectives or purposes. This by concentrated energies and faculties, with industry, diligences and perseverance, probably winning rich rewards from superiors or elders.

A child born on this day may have much sound ability and sterling character assuring success with definite and substantial progress in life. It may inherit or find other good gifts.

BUYING HELPS HOLD MARKET

But Enough Profit Taking Develops To Act as Restraining Influence.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 17—Specialized buying continued to provide the main support for today's stock market.

There was enough profit taking on the lengthy advance, however, to restrain the recovery shift and keep many leaders in the minus column. The persistently good war news from virtually all fronts remained as a bullish argument although commitments were trimmed here and there for protection against untoward happenings over the week-end. Transfers of around 400,000 shares for the two hours were among the smallest for the year to date.

Some utilities again were responsive to forecasts of better times for this industry. North American was one of a handful of favorites to register a new top for 1943 or longer.

Advancing tendencies were shown for American Telephone, Public Service of N. J., Chesapeake & Ohio, U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Yellow Truck, J. I. Case, Pheps Dodge, American Smeltng, Loew's, U. S. Gypsum, General Electric and Standard Oil (N.J.)

Dairy Production in U. S. Declining

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 17—The nation's dairy production is declining and a shortage of milk supplies impends, the National Cooperative Milk Producers' federation said today, declaring the administration's wartime program "has been creating scarcity rather than abundance of dairy products."

The federation's board of directors yesterday in a resolution declared centralized government price control and subsidy policies "are destroying the national balance and normal function of economic forces."

"The administration has allowed prices of dairy products to lag behind the prices of such alternative products as hog and beef cattle," the resolution said. "As a result, the income of dairy people is much lower than the income of those other groups. The greater the trend in certain sections toward specialization in the production of milk, the smaller has been farm income.

"When to this situation has been added the scarcity of feeds and other increased costs, it will be understood why production of pork and beef is increasing."

A program of restoring equity of income, putting dairy prices on competitive relation with hogs and beef cattle, would require an increase of income to dairy farmers of approximately $700,000,000 annually, the federation said.

Sell Hogs at Lower Weight, WFA Requests

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17—Because of the feed shortage, the war food administration (WFA) is planning to appeal to farmers to start marketing hogs at weights averaging between 30 and 40 pounds lighter than usual, beginning Sept. 1.

The WFA has concluded that the best way to bring reduced feed supplies into line with the livestock demand is to send hogs to markets at weights averaging about 220 pounds. Now the average is between 250 and 260. In a year, several hundred million bushels of corn thus could be diverted from hogs to other livestock.

Corn growers have been holding their crops either for higher prices or for use in feeding their own livestock. It is possible to make more money feeding corn to hogs than by selling the grain at current government ceiling prices, which are $1.07 a bushel, Chicago basis. This has sharply reduced the flow of corn for cattle and poultry feeding.

CATTLE TRADE IS UNSETTLED

Market Continues to Reflect Uncertainty Over Price Regulations.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 17 — Cattle trading continued to reflect uncertainty over existing price and slaughter regulations today with talk centering around proposed roll-backs and subsidies.

Sharply increased receipts had an adverse effect with the result that most buyers were inclined to operate cautiously and with a determination to exact price concessions wherever possible. Almost without exception central points stressed the dull demand for stocker and feeder cattle reflecting uncertainties regarding the feed situation and price regulations.

Figures issued by the war food administration on federal inspected slaughter for June showed that extremely light marketings of cattle were offset by consistently heavy movement of hogs with total slaughter for the month at 8,278,045, or the largest inspected June slaughter on record. Part of the gain was due to the increased number of packing houses brought under federal regulation this year.

Inspected cattle slaughter for June totaled 707,905 head, or the smallest for any June since 1935 and 32 per cent below the total for June 1942. The total also was 13 per cent under the five year 1938-42 average for the month. Slaughter for the first six months of the year totaled 4,982,687, or 13 per cent less than for the same period last year, but 2 per cent larger than the five year average for the period.

Calf slaughter for June at 326,-523 was the smallest for the month since 1935 and 31 per cent below a year ago in June. It was 28 per cent under the five year average. The total for the first six months was 2,100,075, or 24 per cent under a year ago and 23 per cent under the five year average.

Hog slaughter, on the other hand, totaled 5,640,942 head in June and exceeded the previous June record by more than a million head. Hog slaughter increased 24 per cent over a year ago and was 61 per cent greater than the five year average. For the first six months it totaled 29,-697,285 head, or 11 per cent more than a year ago and 33 per cent over the five year average.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"THERE is no 'if' about it," Dicky said sternly. "I repeat: Mrs. Bickett is to be back here at the hotel one hour after she leaves here, no matter what information she does or does not give you."

Ruth Hayes' eyes were defiant while Adams and Winters again ranged themselves on either side of her, each with his hand on one of her arms.

"So—!" she drawled.

"Git!" Dicky snapped. "Take her away, then put her in a taxicab as I told you, and then come back here."

As if, I told myself, she were a queen going to a headsman's block—and I hated to give her the tribute—she walked steadily, with head erect, out of the room, although she must have been suffering excruciating humiliation. When the door had closed upon her and her escort, Dicky walked swiftly to the door and put on the night chain. As he turned back to me, my father came into the sitting room from my bedroom.

They Take Stock

"Let us sit down, all of us," he said, "and take stock."

His tone told me that, from his standpoint, the interview with the Wilderness Woman had been most satisfactory, and when we had taken our seats he made his approval vocal.

"I congratulate you, Richard," he said. "That was a masterly performance, and most gratifying in its results. I have learned a great deal about the Wilderness Woman and her mental processes. You were able to break through her defenses, and make her reveal her real nature."

He paused and put his fingers together as he does when he is summing up a situation.

"She is, above everything else, a bluffer," he said finally. "She has no idea of Jack's whereabouts. She is only guessing. But do not underestimate her brain. She is such an accomplished liar herself, that she recognizes a similar ability in others."

He permitted himself a smile before he went on.

Did Not Believe Him

"Therefore," Richard," he said, "she did not believe your very plausible assertion that Katharine and Madge know nothing of Jack's whereabouts. And if Katharine gets into her hands, she would not hesitate to use any methods which might occur to her fertile and evil mind to find out what Katharine knows."

"That's only too true," Dicky said. "But," he added audaciously, "I have a sneaking notion that Katharine won't have to meet Ruth Hayes tomorrow night."

"If things go as I expect at the bank and the hotel in the morning, and at Meredith's office in the afternoon," my father said, "your notion needn't sneak, but can come right out in the open."

A smile punctuated his sentence, and then a knock upon the door heralded the return of Adams and Winters. Adams was plainly perturbed.

"I'm afraid I'm due for a drubbing down from Milner," he said.

"Why?" My father's question made me hear the ping of a bullet.

Milner Objects

"Because he came up to us just now as we were taking the lady through the hall. He didn't pretend to recognize her, although we know she'd been in his office tonight, but he blustered out: 'What is all this? What are you doing?'"

"What did you tell him?" my father asked.

"That you had asked us to put the lady into a taxi, pay the driver, and tell him to take her wherever she wished to go," Adams answered. "For a second or two I thought he was going to swell up and burst, he was so mad. But he pulled himself together, and said: 'Very well, but I want to see both of you in my office right away.' I told him you had told us to report to you as soon as the lady left, and he almost had another fit. He finally told us to do as you wished, but to report to him immediately afterward. He's waiting for us right now."

"H-m!" my father commented. "Well, we mustn't send his blood pressure up too high. You'd better go down right away and see him."

He put the tips of his fingers together again, and looked at the two obviously uneasy men standing before him.

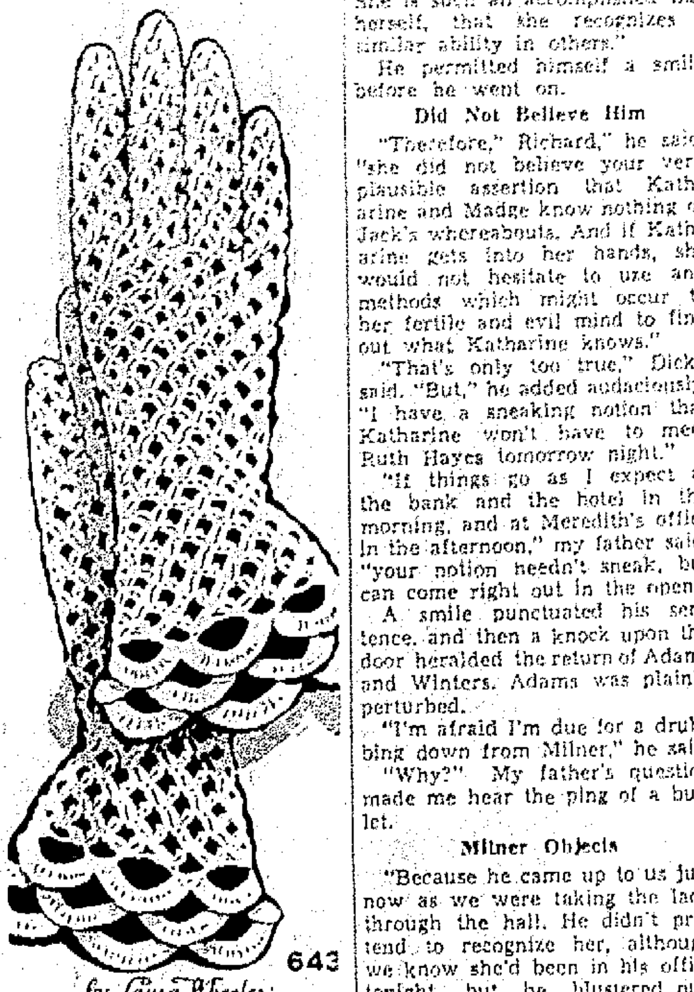

Has An Arrangement

"There is no need for you to be disturbed," he said. "I have an arrangement with Milner, as you know, whereby I am to be able to secure your services at any time. Tell him that tonight I told you we were expecting visitors who might need strong handling, and that I asked you both to be on this balcony from two o'clock on, ready to deal with anybody who might come there, and to take any subsequent orders from me.

"Tell him," my father added, "that it was a false alarm about the balcony—you need say nothing about the men you thought you saw—and that your next order was to take the lady to the taxi."

"Do you want us to pretend she came willingly?" Adams asked.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Worker's Diet

CERTAINLY a great deal of the success of our war effort depends upon keeping the industrial worker in the highest degree of efficiency, and certainly the highest degree of efficiency depends primarily upon his food and nutrition.

Studies are being made by trained nutritionists of the quality of industrial workers' food all over the country. The meals which are furnished by the factory itself are usually well-balanced from the nutritional standpoint. The foods sold in a company canteen are not necessarily so, especially if the selection is left to the workers' taste and appetite. For instance, signs reading "Candy bars sold throughout the plant are a definite aid to the health and efficiency of our employes," and "Employees' nourishment afforded by candy dispensed through canteen" are not statements with which scientific nutritionists can agree.

Candy, pastry and soft drinks have a very limited nutritional value. It is perhaps true that candy lessens fatigue, but only for a short while and it may take away appetite for more nutritious or wholesome foods.

A dinner pail or lunch box prepared at home or provided by local merchants supplies the great majority of industrial workers with their lunches. Restaurants, lunch wagons, refreshment stands, and automatic feeding machines also play a large part.

A rough formula for evaluating lunches is the following:

A good lunch includes all three of the following items: milk, fruit or vegetable and a main dish—meat or fish.

Fair is lacking one of these three items.

Poor is lacking two or all three items.

A survey of dietary conditions in industry showed that only 10 to 25 per cent of the employes of 33 large plants consumed milk. There is no reason to doubt that this estimate applies to industry as a whole.

In most plant cafeterias a "daily special" is served for 25 to 30 cents. Most of the employes select this daily special. Estimating the ingredients alone, it would appear that most of these daily specials are of a high nutritive value, but in the preparation—through cooking, pouring off water and fluids that have accumulated in cooking, and with the food standing for hours—a considerable amount of vitamin content may be lost.

A carefully selected meal consisting of tomato juice, meat, potatoes, carrots, whole-wheat bread, butter, milk and a custard pudding can be prepared so that there is little loss of vitamin content, but it is estimated that this would cost 50 cents rather than 30 cents.

These findings, which I emphasize again were made by extremely careful nutrition experts, would indicate that industrial plants could profitably exercise more care in the supervision of the diet which their workers eat. There is no question that if improvement occurs in the diet, it will also bring about improvement in the efficiency of the worker.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. H.: What disease causes palpitation of the heart, smothering and choking after meals? Will x-ray pictures and other examinations show when gallstones are present in every case?

Answer: Palpitation of the heart is almost always a nervous affection, is not of any serious import. The diagnosis of gallstones is still only fairly satisfactory. The two questions of whether gallstones are present, or whether there are no gallstones can be answered only in about 75 per cent of instances by x-ray.

T. Y.: What is hemato-porphyrinuria of the liver?

Answer: Porphyrin is an organic crystal which sometimes accumulates in the bile in such quantity as to cause a colic, resembling gallstones. It is also excreted in the urine, turning the urine red after exposure to light.
